CAR PASSENGERS PAY $40,000 INCREASE BY FARE RISE, HAM SAYS

Companies Claim Deficits Are Continuing in Lesser Degree.

TIME TO FILE APPEAL EXTENDED BY COURT

Lawyers in Case Seeking to Eliminate Matters Nonessential.

LOW-PRICE TAXICABS BLAMED FOR SLUMP

Traction Officials Unworried by Counter Action; Believe It Will Fail.

In the course of the 20 days since the new street car fares became effective, street car riders have paid $1,000 a day more than they would have paid under the old rate of fare to the Washington Railway & Electric Co., according to a statement made public yesterday by William F. Ham, president of the company.

Despite the higher fares the revenues of both car companies have been less than in the same period of last year, it was said, showing that the percentage of decrease in the number of revenue passengers carried since the high fare became effective has been greater than the percentage of increase in the fare.

Companies Similarly Affected.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., told inquirers that the records of his company would show a similar experience to that of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Mr. Hanna said that the loss in revenues on his lines, due to a decrease in the number of revenue passengers carried, had been running about 8½ per cent, compared with receipts last summer.

Since the 10-cent cash fare, with four tokens for 30 cents, became effective at the order of Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District Supreme Court, the rate of revenue loss has been reduced to daily figures varying between 1½ and 2 per cent. This, too, would indicate a loss in the number of revenue passengers carried.

People's Counsel Gets Extension.

At the same time that Mr. Ham was issuing his figures, showing the benefits to his company resulting from the increased fares, Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, and Vernon E. West, acting corporation counsel, were getting from the District Supreme Curt an extension of their time for filing an appeal from the decision of Justice Bailey ordering higher fares.

The motion for extension, which was granted by Justice William Hitz, specifies that the record of the proceedings before the commission and the court covers 2,300 pages and that there are 140 exhibits. It also is set out that attorneys for the commission and Mr. Keech and attorneys for the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. have had numerous conferences, at which they have attempted to eliminate from the record all nonessential matter.

Justice Hitz granted the extension after attorneys for the traction companies had consented. Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride, Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon West and Mr. Keech asked for the extension of time.

Success of Appeal Doubted.

Despite the determination of Mr. West and Mr. Keech to prosecute the appeal, there is no expectation in utilities circles that the appeal will be successful.

While the appeal is pending, however, the Public Utilities Commission is to undertake a revaluation of the street car companies. The revaluation is expected to get under way about September 1. It will take about a year and a half, or two years. The proceedings can not affect the fare in the meantime. It is being undertaken because there is not now an adequate and proper valuation of the companies and such a thing is necessary in future controversies.

Cheap taxicabs were blamed by Mr. Ham in his statement yesterday for much of the loss of the street car companies.

Blames Cheap Taxicabs.

"The present unregulated taxicab service," Mr. Ham said in his exposition of the benefits to his company resulting from the higher fare, "was inaugurated March 1, 1930."

From that date to July 22, 1930, inclusive, the old street car fare of 8 cents cash or six tokens for 40 cents prevailed. During that period, the Washington Railway & Electric Co. had an average daily loss in passenger revenue of $1,157, as compared with the same period of 1929. This was due mainly to said unregulated

Calvin Coolidge

Says: It is too much the fashion to abuse party committees and party chairmen. Our Government is administered by means of the party system. No other method has been devised that gives the people so large a control over their own affairs. Even those who disregard party when in office, usually welcome party support when seeking election.

Party organization is necessary to the orderly processes of self-government. It is truly representative. The only alternative is a personal and private organization that leads to boss rule.

Any efficient organization requires an executive head. We need a party chairman for the same reason that we need a President or governor. Generally they have been men of substance, ability and character. When they have been deficient or delinquent they have been retired. They do much hard and disagreeable work with a large amount of personal sacrifice and with no reward but a sense of duty done. Of course they must be partisan.

Instead of representing these necessary and self-sacrificing public officers as the sum of all villainies, the members and the press of both political parties ought to treat them with respect and consideration. We can not promote good government by constantly assaulting the chief instruments of our political system.

R-100 STARTS BACK ACROSS SEA TONIGHT

Dirigible May Be First of Regular Air Lines on Biweekly Schedule.

PASSENGER LIST FILLS

St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The huge British dirigible R-100 is scheduled to dip her nose in farewell to Canada at 9 o'clock tomorrow night (E.S.T.) and start for England on her return crossing of the Atlantic.

As she prepared to depart there came to light a possibility that she may be the forerunner of other and even larger dirigibles which will operate on a regular schedule between England and Canada.

When the R-100 ties up at the home mast at Cardington, Sir Dennistoun Burney, her designer, will go before the British government with plans for a biweekly transatlantic airship service. After an interview with Premier R. S. Bennett today, Sir Dennistoun announced official Canada is favorable to the proposition and that support has been promised from commercial sources.

While the British designer did not disclose the details of his proposal, it was understood he suggested the two governments advance 75 per cent of the construction cost for an airship twice the size of the R-100, at low rates of interest, and that each government undertake contracts for the transport of 6 tons of mail a week at $5,000 a ton.

Although tomorrow is the thirteenth day of the month, a full quota of passengers was assured when the R-100's reservation list closed. Their names were not released, but it was known at least one Canadian technical officer and a party of British and Canadian newspapermen would be aboard.

Engineers were attempting to repair the starboard forward motor, which went dead last night at the conclusion of the trip over eastern Canada, but if they are unsuccessful, officers expressed the opinion the airship would make her return flight on five engines.

A slight tear in the main envelope has been closed and covered with red

ENDURANCE RECORD MAY TOTTER TODAY

Jackson and O'Brine Expect to Stay Aloft Long After Smashing Mark.

MOTOR WORKING WELL

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Dale (Red) Jackson and Forest O'Brine expect to be recrowned kings of the endurance fliers tomorrow, but they do not intend to return to earth for the ceremonies, not for another two or three weeks anyway.

Their immediate goal, the dethronement of Kenneth and John Hunter, the Illinois farm boys who set a 554-hour record at Chicago last month, was just over the horizon tonight. They had been up 540 hours at 7:11 p. m. (Central standard time), and had slightly less than 14 hours to go to equal the Hunter brothers' mark. If their monoplane, Greater St. Louis, is still droning over Lambert-St. Louis Field at 8:52 a. m. tomorrow, they will equal the Hunter brothers' mark and an hour later the new record will be chalked up.

"The voice of the little yellow and orange bungalow," as O'Brine has dubbed the endurance plane in speaking to the ground crew over a short-wave length transmitter, served notice today that the airmen have no thought of quitting the sky soon.

When and if the record is broken, there will be a demonstration on the field below and the endurance team probably will do a little cavorting in the air as part of the celebration, but the fliers then expect to point their rugged ship toward a 1,000-hour record, or about six weeks of sustained flight.

Jackson said today he had his "mind on that mark now," if the motor lasts. It was leisurely and smoothly slashing its way through the hours toward the new record tonight with no signs of weakness.

The determined Jackson-O'Brine team flew to fame last year in the St. Louis Robin, the same type of plane being used this year. Their St. Louis Robin's mark of 420 hours was almost

AVIATOR HELD AS SUSPECT IN MINE BOMBING

Jailed in Illinois Pending Kentucky Extradition; Denies Guilt.

HIS PLANE ANSWERS RAIDER'S DESCRIPTION

Two Girls Aver They Saw Airman Hop Off With Strange Man.

WORK IN COAL FIELDS CONTINUES AS USUAL

Prisoner, 25 and Married, Once Planned Hop From Rome to Dallas.

Murphysboro, Ill., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Circumstantial evidence tonight pointed an accusing finger at Paul Montgomery, 25-year-old local aviator, arrested today in connection with Monday's air raid on the Providence, Ky., coal mining district, in which nine bombs were dropped from a mystery plane. Authorities indicated other arrests were in prospect.

In jail here to await extradition to Kentucky to face a felony warrant issued at Dixon, Ky., Montgomery steadfastly maintained innocence of any connection with the bombing. He said he did not even know of the air raid until informed of it by newspapermen.

He admitted having made an early morning flight Monday, but said he went alone and flew in the vicinity of Pinckneyville, which is in the opposite direction from Providence. The Kentucky town is about 90 miles southeast of here.

Plane Fits Description.

But Sheriff William Flanigan announced he obtained affidavits this afternoon from two Murphysboro girls, Clara Paul and Evelyn Fleming, in which they said they had accompanied Montgomery to the local airport early Monday and saw him take off with a man passenger unknown to them. Some of the persons who saw the plane that did the bombing said two men were in it.

Montgomery's orange and black monoplane fits some descriptions of the bombing ship, even to its number, 508-M. G. C. Martin, Bruce Stone and H. Black, representing Kentucky mining companies upon whose property the bombs were dropped, said here today they saw an orange-hued plane, No. 508-M, fly over Providence during the bombing. The plane, they said, also was sighted at Hopkinsville, Ky.; Shawneetown, Ill., and Harrisburg, Ill. They also said their investigation here revealed Montgomery had taken off about 4:15 a. m. and returned at 8 a. m. The bombing occurred between those hours.

Jackson County authorities were reluctant to discuss the possibility of additional arrests or the possible mo-

HOOVER DROPS VACATION TRIP TO AID RELIEF

Drought Makes Presence Here to Direct Work Needed, Is View.

RAILROADS CUT FEED TARIFF 50 PER CENT

Thom Announces Slash After Making White House Visit.

BREAK IN DRY SPELL NOT YET INDICATED

President Gets Farm Reports for Use of Conference of Governors.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday called off his vacation trip to the Western national parks, with the explanation that the drought situation would compel him to remain close to Washington, where relief plans are centered.

The announcement came as no surprise in circles close to the White House, in view of the President's determination to furnish all possible assistance to stricken farmers and their families through Federal, State and private agencies.

The semiweekly Cabinet meeting discussed the situation yesterday and shortly thereafter Mr. Hoover told newspapermen he had abandoned his Western trip in view of the drought and the thought that he could be of service here.

Railway Rates Cut 50 Per Cent.

The only concrete development in proposed relief projects was an announcement by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, that the emergency freight rate reduction on hay, feed, water and live stock would be made first in Eastern territory and would be a cut of 50 per cent wherever it was effected. The announcement was made after a call at the White House.

The 50 per cent cut would go into effect immediately, it was said, on roads operating to and from regions north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi Rivers. The special rates were expected to be extended in a day or two to other sections of the drought area.

Guard Against Speculation.

Under a plan worked out between the roads and the Agriculture Department, a county agent of the department will pass on all applications of farmers for special rates and certify them to station agents of the railroad. In this manner it is hoped to prevent advantage being taken of the emergency rates for speculative purposes.

The Weather Bureau reported prospects of rain last night or today

Buckley, Wet Democrat in Ohio, Piles Up Lead of Three to One.

JOSEPH T. ROMINSON AHEAD IN ARKANSAS

Bankhead Runs Well Away From Thompson in Alabama Race.

EARLY RETURNS GIVE GORE LARGE MARGIN

Alfalfa Bill Murray Is Given 10,000 Lead in Oklahoma Governor Fight.

Senator George W. Norris, anti-administration candidate, and William M. Stebbins, carrying the administration flag, got away to an almost neck and neck start, with Norris slightly in the lead, in the early returns last night from Nebraska's primaries. Former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock was leading Dr. Jennie Callfas on the Democratic side.

Early returns from Ohio showed the wet, Robert J. Buckley, running nearly three to one over his nearest opponent in the Democratic senatorial primary, while a dry, George White, was way out in front for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, faced with opposition because he ran on the ticket with Smith in 1928, had a lead of more than 3 to 1 over Tom W. Campbell, Little Rock attorney, in the Arkansas primary.

Bankhead Leads Thompson.

Similarly, John H. Bankhead was running well ahead over Frederick I. Thompson, in the Alabama Democratic senatorial primary. The winner is to contend with Senator J. Thomas Heflin in November.

Former Senator Gore had a comfortable margin in the early returns from Oklahoma's Democratic senatorial run-off primary, while the picturesque William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray was running 10,000 ahead of Frank Buttram in the run-off gubernatorial contest.

In 300 out of 3,325 precincts, Gore led C. J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil man, 18,157 to 10,615, while Murray had 23,909 to Buttram's 13,367.

The first returns from Nebraska were from five precincts out of 2,000. They showed Norris 657 to 410 for Stebbins.

Norris Bitterly Opposed.

The most vigorous campaign of them all was that between Norris and Stebbins. With the cry "he is worse than no Republican at all," the regulars of the State, aided by outside influence, put everything they had into their opposition against Norris. He was opposed by the State Anti-saloon League, although an outstanding dry, because of his support of Smith in 1928.

In the other States the leaders were in accord with predictions. Buckley, in a comfortable lead in Ohio, is considered the strongest candidate of a field of five the Democrats could put against the Republican incumbent, Senator McCulloch in November.

Interest in Alabama centered not only in the outcome of the race between Bankhead, son of the former senator, and Thompson, a Mobile publisher, but also in the total votte cast in the primary. Heflin who has been read out of the Democratic party, urged his supporters to stay out of the primary in order to be free to vote for him in November. Should the Democrats poll 200,000 it would seem to mark Heflin's political doom.

Robinson Supporters Disappointed.

Friends of Senator Robinson were disappointed in the early returns because his lead was not greater. His victory had been considered assured. Campbell campaigned against him not only because of his running with

$70,000 KIDNAP CASE YIELDS FIRST CLEW

Missing Elderly Pair Visited Toledo Friday Before Drawing Funds.

MAY HAVE SEEN GANG

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Toledo police found their first clew this afternoon in trying to locate Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, St. Louis, who are believed to have been abducted by a gang of swindlers. It was learned that a Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern registered in the Hotel Secor here last Friday. They arrived in the morning and checked out in the afternoon. It is believed that they may have talked with members of the gang while here. No trace of the couple has been found here today.

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Believed by police to be victims of an unknown fate at the hands of St. Louis gangsters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, an elderly and prominent St. Louis couple, who had a $70,000 bank draft in their possession, were sought by authorities tonight after they left a railroad train here early today and mysteriously disappeared in an automobile.

Detectives were working on a theory that Mr. and Mrs. Kern were persuaded by glib-tongued gangsters impersonating good citizens, to quit the train and continue their journey from St. Louis to Toledo by automobile, and that they were kidnaped after they entered the automobile. The detectives' theory was that Mr. and Mrs. Kern then were robbed.

Mr. Kern, a wealthy St. Louis flour buyer, and his wife, left St. Louis last night on a Wabash train. They had intended to use the money for a real estate transaction in Toledo

SLAUGHTER BY REDS FEARED IN CHANGSHA

MARYLAND NUNS SAVED

Hankow, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Terror prevailed in Changsha today as the Communist horde that recently sacked and burned the city was reported returning with threats to murder every one between the ages of 15 and 35.

Thousands of Chinese fled from the famous Hunan Province capital to escape Red vengeance for wholesale executions by provincial authorities of Communists who participated in looting. Gov. Ho Chien was said to have directed the torture and killing of approximately 250 Communist suspects daily.

Fears were felt that provincial troops could not hold the city walls against the Reds, reported only 5 miles away.

Men said to be Communists were hunted down by troops and quickly executed. The few foreigners remaining at Changsha stayed aboard foreign gunboats.

While new Communist outrages were threatened, more details were received of recent Red depredations in the city. Writing from Changsha on Sunday, an official of the American Northern Presbyterian Mission said 55 large properties of foreign missions had been burned or damaged, and hundreds of small Chinese buildings were set on fire.

The Communists, in a newspaper broadcast throughout Hunan Province, the missionary said, claimed connections with Moscow and announced they planned establishment of a Soviet regime in Hunan, Hupeh and Kiangsi Provinces. They declared themselves against nationalist and rebel factions, which are fighting for control of China's government.

Mrs. Dodson Adamant On Leaving Party Post

Resignation as Women's G. O. P. Director Will Be Accepted.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Republican leaders who gathered here last week, fixed up a rejuvenated national committee and then, went complacently away thinking everything was fine, have another thought coming.

They erred, it seems, as so many men have erred in the past, in thoughtlessness toward the women. Even now they are carrying on unaware that everything is not perfectly all right in their committee home, so to speak. They would suffer a rude awakening to come home some night and find the woman's division gone and yet this is not wholly unlikely at all.

The dissatisfaction, the unrest revolves around Mrs. Louise M. Dodson, director of the women's division.

To pick up the story in chronological order, Mrs. Dodson announced her resignation shortly after Chairman Claudius Huston announced he would resign.

The executive committee came here, named Huston's successor and did some other little odds and ends and passed out the word that nothing was to be done immediately about Mrs. Dodson. Subsequently, eight women members of the executive committee, gathered at a farewell dinner given by Mrs. Dodson, insisted that she remain.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, District national committeewoman, made this known to the press, explaining that MRS. LOUISE M. DODSON.

Mrs. Dodson had so demonstrated her capability that the women wanted her to keep up her work.

There were published reports about this time, too, that the reason Mrs. Dodson was quitting was because Huston would not permit her any freedom. The suggestion was that it would be different with the broad-minded Senator Fess and inasmuch as the women wanted her to stay it was considered the matter was at an end.

This being the case, the announcement at Republican national head-

Jury Declines to Indict Carroll in Vanities Case

Takes 20 Minutes to Decide Revue Not "Indecent," to Chagrin of Police, After Acting Captain Gives His Version of Fan Dance.

New York, Aug. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Earl Carroll's latest encounter with the law-enforcement authorities ended today with defeat for those who want to reform the stage when the New York County grand jury refused to return indictments against the producer of the "Vanities" and three principals of the revue for putting on a "lewd and indecent show," as charged by the police.

Intimations of hilarity trickled into the corridors of the courthouse as Acting Capt. James J. Coy, the police department's official dramatic critic and impersonator, passed on to the jurors his version of the window-dressing act and the fan dance which led to the raid on the New Amsterdam Theater July 9.

After Deputy Police Commissioner James P. Sinnott had also told of police objections the grand jurors accepted with alacrity a proffered personal appearance by Carroll, the comedian Jimmie Savo, the window model Kay Carroll, and Faith Bacon, fetchingly and rather completely garbed in powder blue instead of the two ostrich-feather fans which were said to be her only garb on the stage.

Waiving immunity they appeared one by one before the jurors, and it

Dorothy Loveland Is Wed To Rancher of Wyoming

Bride, Daughter of Mrs. George H. Harries, Boasts Many Friends in Capital Society Circles; Marriage Announced as of August 2.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Loveland, of Washington, to Doff Aber, rancher and rodeo performer, was made yesterday at Sheridan, Wyo., according to the Associated Press.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George H. Harries, of Washington, who is a guest at the Dude Ranch, near Sheridan, with her husband, Maj. Gen. Harries, retired.

The marriage took place in Loveland, Colo., on August 2. The couple are honeymooning at the ranch of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Aber, of Laramie, Wyo.

Mrs. Aber has many friends in society circles of the Capital. Gen. Harries had an active career in military, municipal and journalistic fields before retiring. He was at one time president of the Metropolitan Railway, predecessor of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.; was secretary of the Board of Trade, and a member of the Board of Education.

Prior to the Spanish-American War he became commander of the District National Guard, succeeding Gen. Albert Ordway. During the Cuban campaign he commanded the First District of Columbia Volunteers, United States Infantry.

Smith, but because he supported the World Court and took part in the recent London naval parley.

The administration here was keenly interested in the Norris-Stebbins fight. Former Gov. McKelvie, the President's appointee on the Farm Board, campaigned against Norris and announced that should he win, he would not support him.

Norris waged his fight alone in so far as the Progressives are concerned. It was announced several days ago that Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, would not go into the State to assist him. At the time it was not known whether La Follette's decision was based on the assumption that Norris was safe or because the regulars as one of their issues contended that Norris was Wisconsin's senator rather than Nebraska's. La Follette's presence in the State might have accentuated this.

Senator Nye, chairman of the senatorial investigating committee, has promised to go back into the State and reveal the full story around the candidacy of a Broken Bow, Nebr., groceryman, also named George W. Norris. His name was ruled off the ballots. The Norris supporters charged the "interests" had entered the young man to confuse the situation. Subsequently, the regulars said the Norris forces had entered the groceryman in order to claim trickery on the part of the regulars.

Robert Mackey's Services Are Set

Rites for Auto Accident Victim Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Robert Walton Moore Mackey, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crandal Mackey, the former a prominent attorney of Washington and Arlington County, who died in St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, Monday night, from injuries received in an automobile accident the morning of July 30, will be conducted from the home on Mackey Hill, Arlington County, tomorow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Washington.

Mackey, a graduate of Devitt Preparatory School, of Washington, in company with several friends, was returning home from Baltimore when the car in which he was riding skidded and rolled into a ditch. Young Mackey was the only one of four who sustained serious injuries. His mother is prostrated by his death.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Royal Gordon and Mrs. Raymond Reilly, and four brothers, Crandal, jr., Argile, Darlington and Lincoln Mackey.

Annapolis Assured Of Water Supply

President of Company Says There Is No Danger of Famine.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12.—T. Roland Brown, president of the Annapolis Water Co., today emphatically stated that there is no danger of a water famine in Annapolis.

"Naturally, there is a shortage in the normal supply because of the continued drought and diminishing supply from the regular streams," Mr. Brown said, "but there are other sources of supply, and officials of the company have taken steps to meet the situation by pumping water from other nearby streams and placing old wells in condition. There is a supply for an indefinite period, and consumers are complying with the request to conserve as far as possible and this is aiding the situation greatly."

The greatest complaint heard about the water just now is its brackish taste. This occurs every time there is a dry spell during the summer season and it is explained that the taste is due to the treatment by use of algae for purification. Many consumers are boiling all water. Others, to whom the supply is too distasteful, are obtaining their water for drinking purposes through the courtesy of authorities of the Naval Academy. Still others are getting theirs from natural springs and wells of residents in rural communities.

Arkansas Health Conditions Serious

Outbreak of Pellegra and Typhoid Is Caused by Drought, Aid Says.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. C. W. Garrison, State health officer, described health conditions in Arkansas as serious as a result of the drought in a report transmitted to Gov. Parnell today as the governor prepared to depart for Washington to attend a conference called by President Hoover to discuss measures of aid to drought stricken sections.

Dr. Garrison said an outbreak of pellagra and typhoid fever had followed in the wake of the drought and he urged Gov. Parnell to "bring sharply to the attention of the President" the need for immediate aid to prevent a spread of the diseases.

Adequate funds are necessary, he said, to purchase and distribute yeast, canned tomatoes, salmon and other articles of food rich in vitamins which fortify the human system against pellagra. Lack of green vegetables due to the drought was the primary cause of the pellagra, Dr. Garrison said, while typhoid has increased due to lack of pure water in many localities.

MONTGOMERY BAN ON WATER LIFTED

Further Tapping of Capital's Resrrvooirs Affects Chevy Chase Residents.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

With operation of the fourth emergency connection to supply water from the District reservoirs to nearby Maryland areas, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission yesterday lifted its ban against sprinkling gardens with hose in Chevy Chase, Md.

A pumping station was completed at Belt road and Fessenden street late Monday night, and connection was made with the District supply at Chevy Chase early yesterday morning.

T. Howard Duckett, chairman of the commission, announced that residents of Montgomery County living west of Rock Creek may use garden hose at once for sprinkling gardens, although the ban still rests temporarily against sprinkling lawns with hose.

Schools in Montgomery County, Md., will open on Monday, September 8, it was announced yesterday by the county board of education. The school year will end on Friday, June 12, 1931.

The first day of the fall session will be devited to a meeting of teachers at Rockville. On the following day the teachers are to be at their schools planning their work for the term, while actual schoolwork will start on September 10.

The schools will be in session 184 days during 1930 and 1931, with 2 days of conference meetings, 1 day to plan work and 13 holidays.

The board yesterday decided to close the Elmer School, following a petition presented by George Remsburg, C. M. Heflin, F. N. Pangle and C. S. Monday. This is the last remaining small-type school in the Poolesville district to be consolidated.

Guy Howes has been named trustee for the Etchison School. The old abandoned Glen Echo School property on Wilson lane has been sold to Benjamin S. Goodrick for $5,000, the board announced. The property was offered for sale at public auction some time ago, but was not sold.

The board has granted permission to the Montgomery Agricultural Society to use the Rockville High School for its fair dance this month.

The rcent issue of $36,000 worth of Third Election District road bonds for improvement of the Sycamore Landing-Poolesville road in Montgomery County was purchased yesterday by the Montgomery County National Bank at par value with accrued interest.

The bonds will be chargeable 0 per cent to the Poolesville District, 50 per cent to the county and 10 per cent to the subscribers. Supscriptions already have ben provided, according to Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners.

The project covers 4 miles of highway, which will be constructed of stone, with a covering of oil. L. E. Major, of Frederick, was low bidder for the stone work, while the Bituminous Products Co., of Washington, was the sole bidder for applying and furnishing the surface preparation.

Fines and costs in criminal cases totaling $2,223.45 were collected by the Rockville Police Court during July, according to the court's report, filed with the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday. Of this sum, $680 represented fines for automobile violations, and wil be forwarded to the State motor vehicle commissioner.

Former County Commissioner Odorian W. Robey, of Colesville, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the Maryland House of Delegates. He is backed by the Democratic organization of Montgomery County. Mr. Robey was elected to the board of county commissioners in 1913 and was reelected in 1917.

Harry Fraley, a farmer living between Redlands and Claysville, in the Laytonsville District of Montgomery County, filed his candidacy with the supervisor of elections at Rockville yesterday for the same office as the candidate of the Progressive Democratic faction.

Brainard W. Parker, president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, to whom the support of the Democratic organization as candidate for election to the State House of Delegates had been offered some time ago, yesterday advised leaders of the organization by long-distance telephone from his summer home in Rhode Island that he would be unable to become a candidate.

This leaves the Democratic organization, Progressive Democrats and the Republican party still to name one candidate to the House, Gov. Ritchie having announced yesterday that he would issue a proclamation declaring the Federal census complete to the extent of awarding extra delegates to Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in the General Assembly, giving Montgomery County five delegates in future sessions.

Charles H. Maddox yesterday announced his candidacy for nomination for county surveyor, with support of the Democratic organization. He has served several terms in that office.

Surviving are a son, Benjamin A Poole, and a daughter, Mrs. W. Stoner Beggs.

$25,000,000 Estimated As Loss From Drought

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.). The loss due to the drought was placed at $25,000,000 in a report to Gov. W. G. Conley today by State farm agencies.

The report said it would seem advisable to urge the Federal Government to option or purchase through the Farm Board or other agency basic feeds that will safeguard reasonable prices for supplies in distressed areas.

LEADING IN SENATORIAL PRIMARY CONTESTS

OHIO GIVES BULKLEY LEAD IN SENATE RACE

Clevelander, Wet, Ahead of Democratic Opponents; Young Trailing.

LIGHT VOTE IS REPORTED

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Ohio Democrats had apparently gone on record for repeal of national prohibition in today's Statewide primary by giving former Representative Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, a commanding plurality over his four opponents for the nomination for United States senator. Bulkley advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

At the same time Democrats were favoring former Representative George White, of Marietta, a dry gubernatorial candidate, over Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, advocate of prohibition repeal, by a commanding majority.

In the gubernatorial and senatorial race Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch were unopposed for the respective Republican nominations.

Bulkley had a majority of almost 6,000 over W. W. Durbin, his closest rival, in 1,038 of the State's 8,956 precincts. He was leading by large margins in all the big urban counties and in most of the rural counties. His nomination by a sizeable plurality was indicated.

Interest in Local Fights.

Returns from 1,038 out of 8,956 precincts in the State for the Democratic United States senator nomination give Bulkley, 9,067; Durbin, 3,249; McSweeney, 3,093; Myers, 1,600, and Truax, 2,605.

Returns from 987 precincts for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination give White, 13,131, and Young, 8,042.

Though Ohio voters balloted today to choose party candidates for the United States Senate, Congress, governor and other State offices, the greatest interest was in local fights for party control and in selections for county officers.

While the vote generally reported light, these local fights were said to be responsible for sizable vote being cast in several counties. The total Republican and Democratic vote is expected to be less than a third of approximately 3,000,000 qualified electors. The weather was fair and cool.

Wet Issue Prominent.

A five-cornered senaotrial fight on the Democratic ticket enlivened interest in party members.

The wet and dry issue was predominant in the Democratic senatorial contest where Buckley advocated repeal of national prohibition and George S. Myers advocated modification. Charles V. Traux, former director of agriculture and Senator Simeon D. Fess' opponent two years ago; Durbin, forme State chairman, and former Representative John McSweeney campaigned on the tariff, farm relief and general economic conditions.

Young also favored national prohibition repeal, while his opponent, White, had Antisaloon League indorsement.

Autos of Picnickers Are Looted by Thieves

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Persons attending a Christian Endeavor picnic at a home west of here were heavy losers last night at the hands of unidentified thieves, who apparently made the round of parked automobiles and removed a quantity of handbags, personal clothing, flashlights and automobile equipment.

Complaints were turned in to local officers by the victims. Warrants for search of several homes were issued but so far none of the property has been recovered.

Taxation Exemption Asked by St. John's

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12.—Anne Arundel County Commissioners today acceded to a request made by authorities of St. John's College to exempt from county taxation several buildings in Annapolis purchased by the college during the last few years and used either as quarters for members of the faculty or fraternity houses for the students.

The buildings, all former private residences, include the famous Hammond Harwood house, a fine specimen of colonial architecture and transformed into a museum for historic relics. The city council has also been asked to grant exemption from city taxes.

NORRIS TAKES LEAD ON EARLY RETURNS

Hitchcock Heads Dry Rival in Democratic Senate Race in Nebraska.

BRYAN'S VOTE HEARVY

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—United States Senator George W. Norris, carrying the banner of Insurgent Republicanism, was leading his pro-administration opponent on early returns tonight in Nebraska's senatorial primary.

Returns from 56 out of 2,030 precincts in the State gave the insurgent candidate 3,938 votes to 2,974 for William M. Stebbins, who had the indorsement of the "regular" wing of the party.

Aaron Read, a wet candidate, who virtually withdrew from the race a week ago, trailed with 155 votes.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former senator, was leading his dry opponent, Dr. Jennie Callfas, for the Democratic nomination by a margin of approximately 5 to 1. Returns from 38 precincts gave Mr. Hitchcock, 1,577; Dr. Callfas, 355.

Bryan Sweeps Ahead.

Charles W. Bryan, brother of the late William Jennings Bryan took a top heavy lead over Anton Jensen in the Democratic gubernatorial contest. Returns from 38 precincts gave Bryan 1,577 votes to 355 for Jensen.

In the Republican gubernatorial contest Gov. Weaver had 3,071 votes and Harry C. Palmer, 1,123 in 42 precincts.

Reports that Democrats were calling for Republican ballots on a wholesale scale threw leaders in the Nebraska senatorial primary into a state of turmoil today.

There was much scratching of heads among political prognosticators, as the polls closed after a day of record voting, concerning which of the leading Republican candidates benefitted by the apparent switch in party allegiance.

At headquarters of Senator Norris leaders pointed to the insurgent candidate's anti-Hoover leanings and saw in the divergence only additions to the plurality predicted for their standard-bearer.

Stebbins Clans Go.

Supporters of William M. Stebbins, the "regular" Republican candidate, pointed to the indorsement by Bishop Frederick D. Leete, presiding officer of the MEthodist Church ni Nebraska, and predicted that many Methodists had rallied to their candidate.

Aaron Read, 84-year-old resident of Madison, Nebr., who sought the Republican senatorial nomination on a wet platform several days ago conceded he could not win the nomination and announced he would support Stebbins should the latter obtain the primary nomination.

Although Norris is a dry, the backing the Nebrsaa W. C. T. U. went to a Democratic candidate, Dr. Jennie M. Callfas, who bolted her party two years ago in the presidential campaign to oppose Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

BANKHEAD LEADING IN ALABAMA RACE

Scattered Returns Indicate Big Majority for Lawyer in Senate Contest.

JASPER ALSO IS AHEAD

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—John H. Bankhead, of Jasper, assumed an early lead over Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, in the race for Democratic nomination for the United States, with scattered returns from 19 of the 67 counties in the State reported. The vote in 67 of 1,488 precincts in the State was Bankhead, 2,361; Thompson, 889. The tabulations included mostly small boxes.

In the gubernatorial race W. C. Davis, of Jasper, lieutenant governor, held a substantial lead over W. B. Miller, of Camden, former associate justice, who stood second in a six-man race.

Returns from 67 out of 1,488 precincts give—Davis, 2,623; Miller, 1415; Woolsey Finnell of Tuscaloosa, 232; Charlie C. McCall, attorney general, 219; Watt T. Brown, of Birmingham, Democratic national executive committeeman, 54; J. A. Carnley, of Enterprise, judge of probate of Coffee County, 31.

Bolters Returning, Belief.

The scattered reports indicated to political observers that the vote in the Democratic primary was normal and led to the prediction that a majority of the 75,000 defectors of 1928 had returned to the fold.

Voters were to decide nominees from United States senator down to county subdivisions.

By midafternoon it was freely predicted in many campaign headquarters that today's vote would range between 19,000 and 200,000.

Winner Will Oppose Heflin.

Voting today climaxed an intensive campaign between Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, and John H. Bankhead, Jasper attorney, for nomination to the United States Senate. The winner will oppose Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who was barred from the primary because he failed to support the Democratic Presidential ticket in 1928.

In the senatorial race disposition of Muscle Shoals and development of inland waterways were outstanding issues. Mr. Thompson charged Mr. Bankhead with being the candidate of the Alabama Power Co. and "corpodate interests." Mr. Bankhead charged Mr. Thompson with being a "destructionist" and questioned his party loyalty.

The Ku Klux Klan, a double primary system, highway construction, economic State government and chain stores have been issues in the governor's race.

Uniforming of Dry Aids to Be Studied

Woodcock to Confer With Maryland Auto Club on Suggestion.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Md., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Amos W. W. Woodcock, new director of prohibition, will confer with officials of the Automobile Club of Maryland tomorrow on a plan for the uniforming of prohibition agents on duty at night.

Mr. Woodcock asked H. M. Lucius, secretary of the club, and Alan Sauerwein, attorney for the club, to come here after Lucius had suggested designation of agents on State roads so that motorists would not mistake them for highwaymen.

The prohibition director, a colonel in the Maryland National Guard, is attending the annual summer training camp of the guard here. The correspondence between Mr. Woodcock and Mr. Lucius grew out of the firing at an automobile operated by E. G. Duncan, a State roads engineer, by prohibition officers.

INCUMBENTS AHEAD IN ARKANSAS RACE

Senator Joe Robinson Leads Campbell by Nearly Four to One.

BOLTERS ARE KEPT OUT

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Senator Joe T. Robinson had nearly a four-to-one lead over his opponent, Tom W. Campbell, and Gov. Harvey Parnell was leading his nearest opponent, Brooks Hays, by a narrow margin in early scattered returns from today's biennial State primary.

Ninety-six precincts out of 2,028 gave Robinson 4,251 and Campbell, 1,114.

An even 100 precincts in the gubernatorial race gave Parnell 3,825; Hays, 3,328; John Sheffield, 343; Thornberry Gray, 87.

Approximately 225,000 Vote.

Democrats numbering approximately 225,000 cast votes in the primary. Chief interest centered in the senatorial race and in the gubernatorial contest. The Democratic nomination is equivalent to election.

Although the campaign was one of the most heated in years, no disorders were reported, but the votes of many persons were challenged by election officials on the ground that they failed to support the Smith-Robinson presidential ticket in 1928.

Arule of the Democratic party in Arkansas, barring bolters in the 1928 presidential election from participation in the primary, was being enforced rigidly in some sections and moderately in others, reports from many sections of the State indicated.

List of Bolters Issued.

Only a few challenges of voters were reported in Pulaski County (Little Rock) during the forenoon, but the rule was being enforced chiefly against leaders in the anti-Smith movement of two years ago. Several of these who had not appeared at the polls before noon were expected to be challenged during the afternoon.

The firmest stand against the 1928 defectors was taken in Union County, of which Eldorado is the county seat. There the county Democratic central committee issued a list of 1,600 names of alleged bolters with instructions to election officials to bar them.

Many were reported challenged in Eldorado during the morning and some threatened court action.

Declines to Ballot.

Two politicalfoes met at a polling place in North Little Rock, and one of them, Municipal Judge R. L. Montgomery, challenged the vote of the other, former Judge Jack Weas. When Weas refused to state definitely to election officials that he had supported the Smith-Robinson ticket in 1928 his vote was declined.

Dr. A. C. Millar, editor of the Arkansas Methodist, official State organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church South and chairman of the anti-Smith executive committee of Arkansas, announced in an open letter a few days ago that he would not attempt to vote in the primary and appealed to other anti-Smith followers to refrain from voting and hold themselves in readiness for independent action in the general election if Democratic nominees were unsuitable.

Farm Cooperative Asks Financial Aid

Rockingham Bureau Requests Gov. Pollard to Urge Plan Here.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 12.—The board of directors of the Rockingham Cooperative Farm Bureau, Inc., representing 1,325 farmers of the Shenandoah Valley, in a letter to Gov. John Garland Pollard tonight requested him to lay before the governors' drought conference at the White House Thursday a proposal that Federal Reserve Banks be more liberal in rediscounting notes offered by members of the Federal Reserve System, so that local banks may be able to finance farmers in buying feed to hold their dairy cows and beef cattle.

The Rockingham bureau said it did not feel it was financially able to indorse such notes as proposed by the Federal Farm Board. "We believe the credit situation could be handled more satisfactorily here through the banks and this could be accomplished by more liberality on the part of the Federal Reserve Bank in rediscounting notes offered by the local banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System," the letter said.

Forest Fires Burn Area Near Solleys

Bungalow and Barn Are Destroyed; Michaels' Estate Saved.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12.—A number of properties were destroyed by forest fires at Solleys, in the Third District. The blaze spread over a large area at Nabbs Creek, near Stony Creek, yesterday with firemen from Eastport, Glenburnie, Earleigh Heights, Linthicum Heights and Herald Harbor fighting desperately through the day and early evening to save the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Michaels. In this they were successful.

It was estimated the flames swept an area of 1,000 acres before they were controlled early today. Three shanties, owned by Martin Green, colored, went up in smoke, while a bungalow and an automobile truck were among the losses of "Shorty" Hock.

A barn belonging to George Younbar, filled with hay, was destroyed. The fire spread rapidly in the foliage seared by the long drought.

CROP REPORTS SEND MANY STOCKS DOWN

Market Sells Off as Report Tells of Hoover's Plan to Forego Trip.

SHARES HIT NEW LOWS

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Wall street placed a decidedly bearish interpretation upon the Government crop reports today, and share prices shrank rapidly on the Stock Exchange.

Final quotations displayed a long list of net losses of $2 to $9, and Peoples Gas recorded a maximum drop of $19. The price index of 90 representative shares lost about 4 points, compared to a drop of 6.2 last Friday. The index was carried within less than 4 points of the low of the year, recorded on June 24. Total sales were only 2,085,440 shares, but selling was so heavy in the final few minutes of trading that the ticker ran for fifteen minutes after the close.

Not since early in the present century, when the Nation was still primarily agricultural, has Wall street been so concerned over the crops. There had been a tendency in brokerage circles to believe early reports of crop damage would be minimized as all the facts became known. The Government's estimate of a loss of nearly 800,000,000 bushels in corn during July, however, was worse than expected.

The market sold off substantially during the morning, rallied during the middle of the day, but declined during the late afternoon, when the report reached Wall street that the crop situation had caused President Hoover to forego his Western trip, together with publication of preliminary estimates indicating a further slackening of steel-mill activity.

Farm implement manufacturers, mail order houses, and railroads serving the agricultural area, were decidedly heavy, several recording new low levels for the year or longer.

The utility shares were also under pressure, the price index of twenty issues from this group breaking to a new low for the year, slightly below the 1930 minimum reached in June.

Such stocks as General Electric, American Telephone, General Motors, Radio, North American and Standard Oil of New Jersey closed about $2 lower. United States Steel, Johns-Manville and United Aircraft were among issues closing about $3 lower. Westinghouse Electric, DuPont, American Can, Vanadium and Houston Oil dropped $4 to $6. Eastman Kodak, Union Pacific and Worthington Pump closed with losses of $7 to $9.

International Harvester dropped about $6 to a new 1930 minimum at $72, and closed at $73.50. J. I. Case tumbled $16.50 to a new low for the year at $150.75, and closed at $152.50. Sears-Roebuck and Rock Island each dropped about $8 and Canadian Pacific $4 to the lowest prices since 1927. Montgomery Ward sagged more than $2 to $29.87, the lowest price ever reached by the present stock.

Jury Indicts Virginian In Death of His Son, 8

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 12.—Kelly Farmer of Caroline County, charged with responsibility in connection with the death of his 8-year-old son, Stephen, who died on May 30, as the result of burns received when a neighbor's barn which he entered at the instigation of his father to steal gasoline, it is alleged, caught fire, was indicted on four counts by the Caroline County grand jury charging voluntary manslaughter, arson, larceny and breaking and entering a building.

The trial was set for August 18.

COMMISSION WORK PLEASES PRESIDENT

End of Controversy About Golden Gate Bridge Brings Comment.

FIVE HAVE BEEN NAMED

President Hoover is proud of the various commissions, which he has appointed to handle specific problems. He made this clear when he told of the settlement of a ten-year controversy over the proposed Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco.

"The fifth of the commissions that have been appointed to determine the facts and to advise upon or negotiate special problems has now completed its report and secured a very admirable result," said the President.

"After several years of delay in settlement of a site for a much needed bridge across San Francisco Bay, due to disagreements between the naval authorities, the Army engineers, the municipal and State authorities, the commission representing all these agencies, under the chairmanship of Mr. Mark L. Requa, has now come to unanimous agreement and appears to have found a solution which has commended itself in all directions, and a much needed improvement may now be carried forward.

"The bridge will be constructed by local authorities. It involves no participation by the Federal Government other than the granting of certain rights of way."

The first of the five commissions referred to as having concluded its work was appointed to study the problem of bringing the Veterans' Bureau and other agencies handling veterans' affairs together under one head. This has now been accomplished and the Administrations of Veterans' Affairs is now a reality.

A second commission, headed by James Rudolph Garfield, settled the Southwestern railroad strike. The Haiti Commission not only worked out a satisfactory plan for limiting American control there but probably headed off a potential revolution.

The American delegation to the London Naval Conference was also given a commission status and the President thinks it did a most excellent piece of work before disbanding.

SOCIETY SPONSORED EWALD, MAYOR SAYS

Prosecutor Is Told Steuben Body Urged Appointment; Saw No Politician.

$12,000, IF PAID, WASTED

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Mayor Walker told District Attorney Crain today that if former Magistrate George F. Ewald paid any one $12,000 in the belief it was necessary to get his appointment he wasted the money.

"If he voluntarily contributed any money for that appointment," the mayor said, after outlining the steps leading to Ewald's selection, "he might just as well have thrown it in a sewer for all the good it did him."

Walker Made Inquiry.

The mayor said Ewald's name was presented to him by the Steuben Society and that he made personal inquiry of his friends as to Ewald's fitness. Convinced that he would make a good magistrate, partly because of Ewald's previous service in the district attorney's office, the mayor said he appointed him to the bench. He denied that George W. Olvany, former Tammany leader, or any other political leader interceded in Ewald's behalf.

Preceding Mayor Walker in Mr. Crain's office was Emerich Boczor for several years private secretary, without pay, to Ewald. Boczor said Ewald told him he paid $12,000 for his appointment, $10,000 of which went to Martin J. Healy, a district Tammany leader and suspended deputy commissioner of plant and structures.

Loan by Mrs. Ewald.

In explaining the case to Mayor Walker, Mr. Crain said Mrs. Ewald loaned Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk to Sheriff Farley, $10,000 which Tommaney in turn loaned to Healy, without receiving any promissory note or receipt. Mr. Crain called the transaction an "unusual one."

The investigation was started by United States Attorney Tuttle, who uncovered information relating to the loan in his investigation into Cotter Butte Mines, Inc., an inquiry which led to the indictment of Ewald, his brother and two other on charges of mail fraud.

Hoover Felicitates Germany on Festival

(Associated Press.)

The State Department yesterday made public a message of greetings from President Hoover to President Von Hinderburg of Germany, on the occasion of the eleventh anniversary of Germany's adoption of the Weimar constitution.

"On this anniversary which the people of Germany are celebrating today, I take pleasure in tendering to your excellency cordial greetings. I also offer personally the assurances of my own high regard," President Hoover's message said.

tive for the bombing. The outrage was attributed in general, however, to strife resulting from efforts to unionize the Kentucky coal field.

Planned Hop From Rome.

Montgomery, who is married, has been a commercial pilot here in recent years. He gained considerable publicity some months ago when he talked of a Rome-to-Dallas, Tex., flight this summer. He was not a miner or affiliated with any of the factions of the mine union, but a few years ago worked for his father who operated a coal mine between De Soto and Elkville, Ill.

Ramond Phifer, 25, a dairyman's son, was questioned late today by Sheriff Flanigan and told him he drove Montgomery and the two girls to the flying field shortly before dawn after they had attended a party.

Montgomery, Phifer said, flew away with a stranger who was roughly dressed and carried a sack. Phifer insisted he did not know the passenger's name.

Mines Are Operated.

Providence, Ky., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Mines were operated as usual in the Webster County coal fields today and no disorders were reported. Webster County officials awaited the return of deputy sheriffs who went to Murphysboro, Ills., for Paul Montgomery, aviator, arrested as a suspect in connection with the bombing of mine properties here yesterday.

Sheriff R. L. Overby at Dixon, said he expected other arrests soon and that no information would be given out until all suspects were apprehended. He declined to divulge the charge designated in the warrant issued for Montgomery's arrest.

Sheriff Overby asked Gov. Sampson to issue a requisition on the government of Illinois for Montgomery. He learned that Montgomery would fight extradition. An immediate trial was planned upon his arrival here.

FIRST CLEW FOUND IN KERNS MYSTERY

today, but did not keep their appointment in the latter city.

The money was withdrawn from a St. Louis bank yesterday. Mr. Kern first asked for his entire deposits of $90,000 and wanted it in $5,000 bills. J. Hugh Powers, vice president of the bank, and detectives there persuaded Mr. Kern, who is 70 years old, to take $70,000 in a negotiable bank draft instead.

Protection Was Arranged.

When Mr. Kern left St. Louis, word was sent to Toledo detectives to meet him on arrival and to endeavor to protect him. During the train trip, he received two telegrams, one urging him to leave the train at Fort Wayne, Ind., to meet a group of persons. Mr. and Mrs. Kern did not act on that telegram, but spoiled the plans for a protective reception at Toledo by quietly leaving the train at Defiance.

Several persons saw the couple enter an automobile with three men. At that time, they apparently were acting of their own will. No trace was found of them after the automobile, a sedan with an Illinois license, was driven away. Toledo detectives opened the investigation shortly after the Wabash train arrived with the couple missing.

Phone Call Is Received.

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Police began a search today for Charles Kern, wealthy St. Louis flour buyer, and his wife, who left here last night for Toledo, Ohio, with a $70,000 bank treasurer's check, but alighted from the train instead at Defiance, Ohio.

A maid at the Kern home here said Mr. and Mrs. Kern left at 3:45 p. m. to catch a 6:30 train for Toledo. The maid added that at 3:45 a. m. today she received a long-distance call from a man known to her and the Kerns as "Schultz," who previously had been a visitor at the Kern home. She said Schultz asked whether the Kerns had left and by what route. She replied they had left, but that she did not know by what road.

The maid described Schultz as a heavy-set man of medium height, blond and about 50. She said it was her understanding that Kern had an appointment today at a Toledo Hotel.

Pittsburgh Mercury Falls to 50 Degrees

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Heat-harassed persons who hoped for quick relief while the mercury was soaring in the 90s here last week, had their hopes realized today. The Government Weather Bureau reported a temperature of 50 degrees this morning, equalling the low record for August 12, set in 1889.

Frost was reported by the Weather Bureau at Elkins, W. Va. The thermometer there registered a low of 38 degrees.

Typhoon Hits Japanese Isle.

Tokyo, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Another typhoon struck the Island of Kyushiu today. Communications were interrupted, but the storm was less serious than that of July 18 in which many were killed.

double the previous record and was regarded as epochal at that time.

They came down only upon instructions from the airplane manufacturing company that sponsored the flight.

If Jackson and O'Brine set a new record, they will be the first refueling endurance fliers to regain the sustained flight record after having lost it.

Until the last day or two, the flight of the Greater St. Louis has been devoid of the glamour that surrounded the St. Louis Robins' feat. It attracted comparatively little attention or interest. Backed only by the fliers themselves who are using their own planes, the flight in its early stages was hard sledding financially.

Depending upon public subscriptions for funds, the fliers have at times nearly faced a deficit. Only last week O'Brine ordered one of his automobiles sold to obtain money to keep the plane aloft.

But with a new record in sight, financial reward also had appeared in the offing. An oil company has offered to pay the fliers $100 an hour for the first 70 hours after breaking the record, and other donations are coming in.

The Hunter brothers landed July 4 at Chicago, after setting their 554-hour mark, and O'Brine and Jackson took off July 21 to regain the record. The Hunter brothers will have reigned as champions only about six weeks if their record falls.

Bank Cashier Took $71,000, Police Say

Laurel, Miss., Man Drives Off in Car; Won Job in School.

Laurel, Miss., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Edward Jackson, 25-year-old teller in the First National Bank of Laurel, was reported by the police today to have left Laurel late yesterday in his automobile with $71,000 of the bank's funds.

News of the shortage became known today when directors of the bank asked police in Tampa, Fla., and New Orleans to watch for the missing teller.

Jackson, connected with the bank for about six years, was selected from his graduating class at Laurel High School for a place in the bank because of his high marks.

Connecticut Reports Frost; Mercury at 38

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Winsted contributes a different kind of a weather story—the first frost of the season this morning. Even pumpkins not yet matured were caught napping. Robert R. Wygold, milkman, discerned frost on the barn roof and in a meadow owned by Edwin J. Busby on the bank of Still River in the northern part of town. He reported the temperature at 38.

Burrville, a nearby village, reported a low reading of 34.

AFRIDIS SPREADING OVER NORTH INDIA

Concentration at Peshawar Apparently Ends as Reenforcements Arrive.

CITY SAVED BY PLANES

Peshawar, India, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The spirit of tribal unrest appears to be spreading on the northwestern frontier, with British forces tightening the defense by increasing aerial bombing operations and rushing fresh troops northward.

Most of the Afridis who have been besieging this strategic city for a week have withdrawn under constant bombing, but meager reports from the countryside indicate that they have spread in all directions and that all branches of the tribe have taken up arms.

An indeterminate number of Orakzais have joined the Afridis, and a party identified as Massoazis attacked Badama post Saturday and Chamkennis were on the warpath until the air force informed them that their own villages would be bombed unless they ceased their depredations.

Peshawar Reported Quiet.

Peshawar was quiet today. One party attacked the cantonments last night with a scattered rifle fire that did no damage. The attackers withdrew at dawn.

Meanwhile, fresh troops arrived today on an armored train from Lahore. The city gates were opened for it. Ordinary trains must stop at Nowahera and passengers continue here by taxicab.

Telegraphic communication to Lahore was restored today. But Charsadda still is cut off.

The six squadrons of army airplanes on duty in the sector are credited with breaking up plans for a mass attack on Peshawar. In one day these machines dropped 6,000 small bombs, and they have made daily attacks on various groups.

Aviators Evacuate Women.

The air force has evacuated the women from Parachinar, a lonely outpost 80 miles by air line west of Peshawar. Twenty miles to the south of Peshawar, Kohat is under attack.

Parties of tribesmen hidden in ditches south of Sorozai were shelled heavily and effectively yesterday, but another force was reported attacking Chichas Village at about the same time.

It is believed that the Afridis were not chastened by their casualties around Peshawar proper, but merely decided that the city, which is heavily defended as the gateway to the Khyber Pass, was impregnable.

To the southwest of Peshawar lies another area which troubled the authorities today. This is the Sind district of Bombay presidency, the scene of much fighting recently between Hindus and Moslems. Troops have taken over half a dozen villages, with armed police in as many more, but looting and communal strife continue.

Gandhi Aids Clash With Police.

Ahmedabad, India, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Violence in the antisalt tax campaign of Mahatma Gandhi's followers broke out again in India today, after having for many weeks been a dormant issue. Seventy-four arrests were made.

Armed police broke up a parade of civil disobedience volunteers who offered for sale contraband salt wheeled in a hand cart through the main streets. The salt was confiscated, several volunteers being injured in a police charge.

The trouble continued all day, culminating tonight in a police charge against a crowd that refused to disperse from around a police post. Several more Indians were reported injured in this fight.

Recluse, 60, Dies In Blaze in Forest

Michigan Owner of Cabin Burns to Death Fighting Fire; Animals Suffer.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The first death attributed to forest fires which have burned over land in the upper peninsula of Michigan was reported today. George Grasby, 60, a recluse, living near Ralph, Mich., fell apparently from exhaustion while carrying water from a creek to extinguish a fire near his cabin. He was burned to death before rescuers could reach him.

More than 1,000 men were engaged tonight in curbing the flames. There are more than 75 fires, by official reports, in the peninsula, most of them in second-growth areas.

Wild animals are the chief sufferers from the fires. Volunteers reported seeing hundreds of deer flee from burning tracts. Less agile snakes have been burned to death by the hundreds. One fear of wardens is that the docile porcupine will act as an involuntary firebug. These animals have been known to run several miles, their bristles aflame and falling off into the dry grass.

Kentucky Banks Plan Tax Aid for Farmers

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The agricultural branch of the Kentucky Bankers Association, meeting with Gov. Flem D. Sampson today, formulated a plan whereby the State banks with the aid of the Federal Government would underwrite the tax bills of drought-stricken farmers.

The plan is to ask the Federal Government to reimburse banks which pay the farmers' taxes, the money to be loaned to the banks by an agency set up by the president, the Federal Government taking the tax receipts as security.

Fireproof Mail Bag Shown; Bars Flames and Hot Air

Pouch Devised by Bureau of Standards and Has System of Pockets in Quilting; Will Be Used in Plane Service Next Month.

(Associated Press.)

A fireproof air mail bag, developed by the Bureau of Standards from pure asbestos, was exhibited at the Post-office Department yesterday preliminary to its inauguration into service on September 1.

The first consignment of the fireproof bags was scheduled for the New York to Chicago night air mail, with other night routes to be supplied as soon as practicable. An air pocket system, made possibly by a quilting arrangement, prevents hot air caused by fire from reaching the interior of the bag. Experiments had proven hot air penetration to cause the greatest difficulty in protecting mail.

The bag, slightly larger than the present pouch, is lined inside and out with canvas, is quilted with steel rivets, and is steel riveted on sides and bottom, and has a triple closing device to prevent flames from penetrating through its neck.

Air mail officials said loss of mail through fire had been only 4,863 pounds during the past fiscal year, or but .00068 per cent of the poundage carried.

Five-Year Drought In Africa Broken

Fifteen Lives Lost as Rain, Snow and Gales Hit Cape Colony.

Cape Town, South Africa, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—South Africa's drought came to a violent end today, fifteen lives being lost during a storm that swept over the fishing fleet near Cape Town.

In many parts of the union there were gales of wind and a heavy fall of rain and even of snow. Property was damaged, traffic disrupted and mails delayed.

Rain fell even upon the little Namaqualand District of the Cape Colony, parts of which had experienced a phenomenal drought that had lasted for five years. The unexpected rain brought great joy to the few inhabitants remaining there.

lead. Refueling operations were still in progress late today, and gasoline, hydrogen and water were flowing into the craft at a rate that would fill her in twelve hours.

Navigating officers were in conference with government meteorologists throughout the day in a study of weather conditions and favorable routes.

The course probably will be over the maritime provinces and across the Grand Banks to the sea. Favorable tail winds are expected to aid the dirigible in her quest for a second record on the eastward crossing.

WITNESSES BLAME PINTHIS FOR CRASH

Fairfax Crew Says Tanker That Sank Failed to Sound Fog Signals.

QUIZ HELD AT NORFOLK

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Members of the crew of the Merchant & Miners liner Fairfax today told United States steamboat inspectors that failure of the tanker Pinthis to sound fog signals was responsible for the collision in Massachusetts Bay that sent the Pinthis to the bottom with a loss of 50 lives.

Testimony was given in the trial of Capt. Archibald H. Brooks, master of the Fairfax, charged with negligence and recklessness.

The tanker, proceeding at a speed that appeared to be approximately six to seven knots an hour sounded only one fog signal, First Officer James G. Hunley and Second Officer William E. Winder, of the Fairfax told Capt. J. E. Tarkenton and Capt. T. J. Hanlon, sitting as court in the hearings of charges against Capt. Brooks preferred by the inspectors in Boston.

Making Slow Speed.

This signal was sounded, both witnesses testified, just as the vessel loomed up in the fog less than 200 feet away and one point of the starboard bow. The sounding of the signal and the sighting of the Pinthis by those aboard the Fairfax was simultaneous, it was stated.

"Full speed astern and helm hard aport," was Capt. Brooks' order in that instant, the witnesses testified. This was the correct and only possible maneuver, it was stated.

Charges of recklessness in handling the Fairfax and negligence in failing to make a proper search for persons who jumped over the side of the Fairfax was refuted by the testimony of both these witnesses.

The Fairfax engines were stopped at 6:37 o'clock Mr. Hunley stated and went ahead at half speed a minute later. Five minutes later—at 7:03—the vessel was in collision with the Pinthis. At the time of the collision it was testified the Fairfax could not have been making more than three to four knots an hour.

Replies By Hunley.

"Do you know what time No. 1 boat was put over the side?" Mr. Hunley was asked.

"About half an hour after the collision," was the reply.

"How long did it stay overboard?"

"Until the arrival of the Gloucester, it must have been about three hours."

"Did the boat pick up any persons from the water?" the court asked.

"No sir."

"But every effort was made to do so?"

"Yes, sir."

"Considering the situation, with fog and collision and the Fairfax on fire, do you think that he handled the situation as well as it could have been handled?"

"I do not believe," the witness said emphatically, "that any man in the world could have done any better than Capt. Brooks."

The witness testified that fire upon the Fairfax was very severe and that it would not have been safe to have lowered a boat to search for persons in the water earlier than was done.

Tells of Fire.

In response to a question Hunley said he saw no one on the forecastle head of the Pinthis, where the lookout is stationed, and only one man on the bridge.

Fire, he said, spread rapidly after the collision and soon enveloped practically all of the port side of the Fairfax, mounting 50 feet to burn a truck from the mainmast. He said members of the crew extinguished the fire.

Replying to a question, he said the last boat and fire drill on the Fairfax was held the morning of the collision in Boston Harbor.

Mr. Powell, third officer, who was in command of the No. 1 boat, which searched the waters after the fire had been brought under control, said he thought the boat was lowered for the search as soon as possible. To have lowered it earlier, he said, would have taken away members of the crew needed to fight the fire.

Third Officer Powell said he heard only one signal from the Pinthis.

Hungarian Premier's Absence Causes Talk

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 12 (A.P.). There is some speculation here as to the whereabouts of Premier Bethlen, who left the country a week ago without any public announcement of his destination or of the purpose of his trip.

Some believe he has gone to London to discuss financial and economic questions with Lord Rothermere, who has always taken an interest in Hungarian matters.

JURY FAILS TO INDICT CARROLL AND AIDS

was understood that Carroll gave his assurances that the questioned scenes had been removed from the show and would stay out.

It took the jurors only twenty minutes to register their lack of agreement with Magistrate Gotlieb, the police and those moral leaders who have been deploring "the degraded state of the stage." "It was all just malicious persecution," reiterated Carroll. Then with kisses for the show girls from Carroll (before cameras) it was all over but the press agents' job of pasting up the clippings.

Those clippings were a particular source of chagrin to Deputy Commissioner Sinnott, who, as watchdog of the white lights, makes it a point not to give a show censorious advertising unless he foresees a criminal conviction. The police have failed before petty juries, as in the recent Mae West case, but today's rebuff was the sharpest they have received in trying to enforce their conception of decency. Generally in the past such cases have not been put before public opinion as exemplified by the grand jury, but have been handed by magistrates direct to the juryless special sessions or have ended with withdrawal of the raided shows.

At the rectory of St. Patrick's Cathedral, whence on Sunday issued the Catholic Theater Movement's excoriation of the Carroll show and of the current adaptation of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata," news of the grand jury action was received without great surprise.

U. S. AIDS INDORSE CURB ON NARCOTICS

Halt on Use of Cocaine and Opium by Physicians Is Goal of Program.

DETAILS OF PLAN GIVEN

(Associated Press.)

A six-cornered program to curb the use of narcotics in the practice of medicine, including active cooperation toward development of non-habit-forming substitutes for products of opium and cocaine, was indorsed yesterday by scientists, manufacturers and Government officials considering the legitimate narcotic needs for the United States.

Surgeon General Cumming, of the Public Health Service, who called the conference as an aid in determining what limit the new narcotics bureau will place on legal importation of drugs, said after the conference he would hold another consultation on ways of carrying out the program.

Dr. William Charles White, chairman of the National Research Council's drug committee, urged a combined effort toward "replacing every legitimate use of habit-forming drugs in medicine." Through the council, research is now going forward on twelve synthetic products which scientists hope will relieve pain without producing addiction.

The six points of the program worked out by the conference are:

Complete analysis of hospital records, with a request that the American Medical Association cooperate in studying normal medical and scientific requirements;

Detailed scanning of prescriptions to determine ill-advised dispensation of narcotics;

Analysis of records of dispensing physicians;

Analysis, with the assistance of the American Pharmaceutical Association, of sale and use of so-called exempt preparations, sold for medicinal purposes, without prescriptions;

Field studies of morbidity and mortality with a view to forecasting tentatively the amount and character of sickness to be expected; and

An educational program through physicians and their clientele toward reducing the demand for narcotic drugs in illness.

Several representatives said diversion of drug supplies from legal sources apparently comprised a relatively small part of the illicit traffic.

Dr. Charles E. Terry, of New York, said a study of Detroit would show a per capita use of about nine grains a year and that previous studies of six other cities showed a variation in per capita use among them from 3.5 grains to 14 grains and 17 grains, respectively. The latter two records, however, were for towns in which there was legal provision for physicians to supply addicts.

Little Hope Held Climber Is Alive

American Schoolmaster's Body Sought Among Mountain Crags.

Mount Robson, B. C., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Search among the ice crags of Mount Robson for Newman D. Waffl, headmaster of Carteret Academy, Orange, N. J., was continued today, with little hope that he would be found alive.

He set out at dawn last Tuesday with two days' provisions to scale the western ridges of the 13,000-foot mountain, loftiest peak in the Canadian Rockies. Although several ascents have been made by the southern slope, no one has ever reached the peak by way of the western approach.

Roy Hargreaves, guide, leading the search, and Jose Sadiana, another experienced climber, found footprints believed to be those of Waffl leading to the topmost ice field. The guides hesitated to venture up the slope because of the dangerous condition of the ice.

Comrades at the Berg Lake Camp, from where Waffl set out, recalled his remark before departing, "I would rather die on a mountain slope than expire in bed."

Warner Brothers Refinancing Seen

Stock Goes Up Following Report of Bank Change by Movie Firm.

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Wall street brokerage circles believed today Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., had become the second large motion picture concern within a year to find itself faced with the necessity of new financing under rather unsettled stock market conditions because of rapid expansion.

Warner Bros. stock, which has declined sharply on the New York Stock Exchange since directors omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 last week, shot up $4 in today's market as an unconfirmed report that a new banking affiliation had been arranged prompted professional traders short of the stock to cover their contracts. Its net gain was later reduced to only 75 cents. The stock was an active feature of the market, 171,100 shares changing hands.

The situation in Warner Bros. recalls that of the Fox Film Corporation late last year. Fox found itself with maturing obligations of about $90,000,000, and faced with a stock market trying to recover from a panic.

Legge, in North Dakota, To Start for Parley

Omaha, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, will start tomorrow by airplane from Dickinson, N. Dak., to Washington, D. C., to attend a farm relief conference with President Hoover Thursday.

Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commanding officer of the Seventh Corps Area, said today a plane had been sent from Fort Riley, Kans., to Dickinson to meet Legge tomorrow. He will fly to Chicago, where another Army plane will be at his disposal for the second leg of the trip.

Georgia Peach Crop Valued at $6,906,400

Atlanta, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Georgia's peach crop this year brought more than $6,906,400 to the State, it was estimated today by A. D. Jones, director of the State Bureau of Markets. A total of 8,633 cars were shipped and each car brought an average of $800 f. o. b.

The watermelon shipments this year were the largest in the history of the State, Mr. Jones said, already more than 23,000 cars have been moved and shipments still are being made, as compared with 21,000 cars handled last season.

HOOVER ACTS TO END AIR DEFENSE CLASH

Efficiency Bureau Asked to Study Economic Side of Coast System.

ARMY-NAVY SURVEY ON

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover as commander in chief of the Army and Navy, has moved to bring about a settlement of the long-standing dispute between the two services over control of aerial coast defenses.

The Efficiency Bureau, at the request of the President, is now investigating the economic spects of the dispute which concerns the point where the Army defenses of the land must end and the Navy's defenses must begin at sea. Meanwhile, a board of technical and professional experts of the two services are studying the question from a military viewpoint and with the view to determining how cooperation can best be maintained between the Army and Navy so far as the control of the air coast defenses is concerned.

While the study by the Efficiency Bureau is purely economic, it will be left for the military experts to work out a definite cooperative plan for the defenses. Should the military board not be able to reach a unanimous agreement, it is probable the President, as commander in chief, will be called upon to settle future control of this part of America's national defense.

The question was brought up by Secretary Adams in a brief to the Attorney General asking an opinion on certain phases of the coast air control and to which the Army took exception. Secretary Hurley placed the matter before the President, who suggested the military experts work on one part of the problem and he directed the Efficiency Board to study the economic phase.

Attorney General Mitchell declined to give an opinion and the matter will be settled directly by the Chief Executive, Secretary Hurley and Secretary Adams.

Steel Merger Suit Halted Third Time

Court Adjourns Until Wick Executors Decide on Continuing.

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 12 (A.P.). Trial of the suit to enjoin the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.-Bethlehem Steel Corporation merger went into a prolonged adjournment for the third time today.

The latest adjournment was ordered by Judge David G. Jenkins, when legal complications developed through the death of Myron C. Wick, jr., who was coplaintiff with the International Shares Corporation in the injunction suit.

Wick's will was rushed through probate court today in the hope of qualifying executors of his estate, who must decide whether they wish to continue in the case as coplaintiffs. However, the hearing necessary to qualify the four executors named by Wick can not be held until next Friday because several parties concerned are out of the city. Judge Jenkins decided to postpone the hearing after a conference with attorneys on both sides.

Vatican Reported Planning Consuls

Paper Asserts Vatican May Name Prelates for New Tasks.

Rome, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Tribuna today reports the Vatican is considering the appointment of consuls or individuals to function as such in countries where the Holy See now is represented by papal nuncios.

The necessity for having consuls to represent the interests of individuals in Vatican City is said to have been shown by difficulties arising over the personal effects of the late Cardinal Vannutelli after his death.

It is stated by the newspaper that the Vatican probably will appoint prelates already attached to the nunciatures, giving them the consular authority.

Sheriff Almond investigated and learned that Sheriff Stoutamire and his deputies had been mistaken for highwaymen while they were searching for a Negro fugitive.

EXCLUSION OF TWO FROM SENATE SEEN

Caraway Says Mrs. McCormick and Davis Will Not Be Seated if Elected.

CITES CAMPAIGN FUND

Exclusion from the Senate of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, on the ground of excessive primary campaign expenditures was forecast yesterday by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas.

Mr. Caraway's prediction was based on the assumption that both Mrs. McCormick and Secretary Davis would win over their Democratic opponents in the November senatorial elections. Victory for Mr. Davis in Pennsylvania is regarded as a foregone conclusion, but in Illinois the veteran former Senator J. Ham Lewis is conceded to have a look-in.

Recalling how the Senate, in the Newberry case, declared that the expenditure of $100,000 in a political campaign was contrary to public interest, Mr. Caraway said that if either Mrs. McCormick or Mr. Davis is seated the Senate "will owe Mr. Newberry an apology."

Mr. Vare Had Better Excuse.

Something of the kind of an apology, he said, would also be due to William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, both of whom were denied seats in the Senate because of excessive expenditures made in their behalf in the 1926 Republican primaries.

Mr. Caraway expressed the opinion that Mr. Vare had a better excuse for spending large sums in 1926 than backers of the Davis-Brown ticket had in 1930, because Mr. Vare was fighting against the ticket headed by former Senator Pepper, who spent nearly $2,000,000. Furthermore, according to Mr. Caraway, Mr. Vare was without any organization support except in Philadelphia, while Mr. Davis had the backing of the Vare machine, organized labor and a considerable element of the party organization in Pittsburgh.

Likewise, Mr. Caraway said, the argument being advanced by Mrs. McCormick's friends to the effect that she had spent only her own money, if carried to its logical conclusion, would mean that no one save a rich man could run for the Senate.

Deficit in Fund.

Just how much was spent in Illinois and Pennsylvania primaries this year is something the special committee, headed by Senator Nye (Republican), N. Dak.), is still trying to find out. Mrs. McCormick's admitted total so far is about $325,000, while that for the Davis-Brown ticket in Pennsylvania also exceeds the $300,000 mark.

In addition, there is a dificit in the Davis-Brown campaign chest which according to the testimony of one witness, amounts to about $100,000.

Agents of the Senate committee are still working in both Pennsylvania and Illinois ad additional hearings are scheduled for the latter State early next month.

Farmers' Meeting Opens in Maryland

James Stone Tells 150 of Needs for Cooperative Seling Plan.

Opening of the Farmers' Marketing Conference yesterday at the University of Maryland was featured by an address by James C. Stone, of the Federal Farm Board, who declared that creation of the board clearly showed that at last the Federal Government had recognized agriculture as an industry and intended to treat it as such.

Introduced by R. A. Pearson, president of the university, Mr. Stone told the 150 farmers, county agents, extension specialists and others at the conference, the first of its kind ever held in the State, about the great strides being made by the board in the formation of cooperative selling gruops throughout the Nation, and pointed out the need for Maryland farmers also to organize for cooperative selling.

Other speakers were Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the university extension service, and Robin Hood, acting secretary of the National Cooperative Council, the latter pointing out the tremendous increase in cooperatives from 6,000 to 12,000 in 15 years and the spurt in membership from 3,000,000 to about 15,000,000.

TWO, IN BALTIMORE, SOUGHT AS BANDITS

District Police Free Pair Held as Suspects in McCrory Holdup.

ALIBIS BEING CHECKED

Investigation of the $1,200 holdup of two employes of the McCrory Five and Ten Cent Store last Thursday was shifted to Baltimore yesterday as two men who had been held by the police as suspects were released.

Detectives went to Baltimore to check the alibis of two men who, according to police, have been identified as suspects in the robbery.

James W. Callan, 23 years old, of Alexandria, and Thomas Elian, of S street near First street northeast, who were being held by police, were released early yesterday. Neither was connected with the case.

Detective Sergt. Thomas Nally, who is in charge of the investigation, said before he left for Baltimore that he expected to arrest two more men in connection with the case. He wishes to qestion them in connection with the alibis of John Irving, 24 years old, and Elmer Bennett, 28 years old, both of Baltimore, who were identified as the robbers and who claim that they were at a Maryland resort at the time of the holdup. Irving says his atomobile, which was identified as the bandit car, was stolen from him at the resort.

Henry G. Mechlinski, 26 years old, also of Baltimore, is also being held as a suspect.

Elmer H. Biggs, of 1003 K street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $25,000 damages from John M. Carl and Anna R. Carl, both of 1626 V street northwest, for alleged slander.

Biggs tells the court that he was arrested and forced to spend an hour in a station house and post a $500 bond on August 15 last, as a result of a complaint made to police that he had passed a bad check. He asserts that the charge later was disproved and he was found not guilty. Attorney H. G. Robertson appears for the plaintiff.

Fruit Quarantines Are Being Revised

Decline of Mediterranean Fly Troubles Causes Hyde to Act.

(Associated Press.)

A broad revision of Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine regulations removing sterilization requirements on fruit and vegetable shipments to wide areas of the country effective August 15 was announced yesterday by Secretary Hyde.

Eradication efforts conducted by the department in conjunction with Florida authorities, he said, have been so effective as to justify relaxing the restrictions. Only three infestations have been found in the past eleven months, he explained, and these were considered so slight that the more stringent regulations need no longer be enforced.

Sterilization of fruit shipments to the Middle West and Northeast will not be required under the modified quarantine. Tomatoes, eggplants, lima beans and other vegetables except peppers also may be moved throughout the country without sterilization.

Drought Reduces Corn in Missouri

July, Held One of Driest in History of State, Cuts Crop.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—July, one of the driest in the history of the State, reduced Missouri's corn crop to 50 per cent of normal up to August 1, says the report of E. A. Logan and Jewell Mayes, of the Federal and State crop reporting service, released for publication today.

The estimated yield as of August 1 is 18.5 bushels per acre, or 109,557,000 bushels from 5,922,000 acres planted, compared with 126,524,000 bushels from 5,384,000 acres last year, when the average was 23.5 bushels.

The report said this year's drought is probably the wrost that has affected so large a portion of the State with such disastrous results.

37-Degree Temperature Felt in Pennsylvania

Franklin, Pa., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The weather that a week ago was uncomfortably hot turned to the other extreme today and frosts were reported in the vicinity of Franklin. The official thermometer registered 37 degrees, the coldest August 12 on record here.

The extent of damage to crops, already virtually destroyed by drought, was not determined. The corn and potato crops for the most part were wholly lost as a result of the dry weather.

Bidding on House Office Annex Set

Offers to Construct New Building Will Be Sought on September 1.

Bids for building the new $8,000,000 auxiliary House Office Building authorized by Congress will be advertised on September 1. Construction probably will start the middle of November, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, announced yesterday, following a conference with members of the Allied Architects.

The Allied Architects have been cooperating with the Government in drawing plans and specifications. A month will be allowed for construction firms to prepare their bids, which are to be opened October 1, Mr. Lynn said.

The new building will occupy only one of the two parcels of land acquired by the Government for the purpose—the one east of South Capitol street and closest to the present House Office Building, with which the new structure will be connected by a tunnel.

The other parcel of land will be held for later expansion of the building.

Four Held as Men Who Shot at Home

Four men who are alleged to have fired a volley of shot Saturday night at the home of Vincent Gigiarna, of 1003 Third street northeast, were held for grand jury action yesterday in Police Court. Judge Ralph Given assessed bond of $2,000 for each defendant.

According to police the men sped up to Gigiarna's home, fired a volley and sped away. No one was injured by the fusillade, but several persons in the neighborhood are said to have barely escaped.

Thomas Tilden Elian, 24 years old, was arraigned on charges of carrying concealed weapons and assault with a dangerous weapon. Howard Bell, 24 years old; Thomas Dorsey, 25 years old, and Clifton C. Gibbs, 26 years old, were arraigned on charges of aiding and abbetting assault with a dangerous weapon.

in some sections of the drought area, but said showers in the previous 24 hours had been insufficient to break the long dry spell.

Pending the conference of twelve governors here Thursday, with the President and Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, it was said in official quarters no further relief steps of a broad character would be taken.

President Gets More Reports.

Mr. Hoover has had additional reports furnished him by Secretary Hyde. These reports have been supplied by several hundred county farm agents. They are expected to be laid before the governors Thursday and the advice of each State head sought as to the best procedure to alleviate any human suffering and financial stress of individual farmers.

Washington officials yesterday regarded the short corn crop forecast by the Agriculture Department as affecting farmers only in scattered area, but predicted many would be deprived of a livelihood.

The cattle feed crop shortage was estimated by these officials as in excess of the carryover and surplus of wheat, and indications were the entire wheat surplus would be needed to meet the domestic requirements of man and beast.

Latest reports received in Washington indicated human problems were increasing with the progress of the the drought and that many farmers would require assistance to tide them over the winter.

Is Second Change.

President Hoover's cancellation of his vacation itinerary yesterday marked the curtailing of his vacation plans for a second time.

Early in May the Chief Executive made known that he expected to tour four or five national parks and visit his home at Palo Alto, Calif. Prolongation of the session of Congress upset his plans after he had received scores of invitations to visit all parts of the West and had been urged by some close political advisers to forego the jaunt.

Plans for the trip were considerably curtailed, but it was said last month at the White House that the President still expected to be able to spend at least two weeks in Glacier and Yellowstone Parks.

Since then other factors have entered into the situation, with the drought finally forcing definite abandonment of such a trip in the immediate future.

Weekly trips to his lodge in the Virginia mountains are expected to be Mr. Hoover's summer diversion, as in this manner he can maintain close touch with official business.

Other Tasks on Hand.

Mr. Hoover has encountered unexpected obstacles in forming a new Tariff Commission and this must be completed by the middle of September under the terms of the tariff act.

Failure of the Senate to act upon his three nominees for the newly created Federal Power Commission also has forced the President to determine whether he can make recess appointments to these posts.

He now has on his desk the opinion of Attorney General Mitchell upon this question, but its contents has been carefully guarded both at the White House and by the Attorney General.

By remaining in the Capital during the summer Mr. Hoover follows the course he adopted last summer when he went to his Rapidan lodge almost weekly. His only vacation of any length since entering the White House seventeen months ago was a fishing trip off Long Key, Florida, early this year.

Oldest Liquor Cases Go On Calendar First

In an effort to clear up the docket of liquor cases, Assistant United States Attorney David Aiken Hart announced yesterday that in future the oldest cases in his office will be calendared for jury trial.

"We are in better shape than the office ever has been," said Mr. Hart, "but we want to be up-to-date or at least no more than two weeks behind." Check of the records of Mr. Hart's office revealed that only one or two cases are more than four months old. These will be calendared for trial next week. Mr. Hart said that he hoped to be able to dispose of at least twenty jury cases a week, and expressed the belief that such action soon would clear the docket.

FRUIT CROP WILL BE ABOVE THAT OF 1929

Yield Throughout Country, However, to Be 10 Per Cent Under Average.

LOCAL PRICES ADVANCE

The yield of all fruits throughout the country is expected to be about 10 per cent less than the average, but about 18 per cent above the short crop of 1929, as a result of the drought, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

As the greater part of the country's fruit supply is grown outside the area of greatest drought, it was said, the scarcity of produce is expected to be limited to certain fruits and vegetables.

Local dealers yesterday said that the arid condition of nearby truck farms in Maryland and Virginia has raised the prices of their produce considerably. There is little likelihood of any decline this season, they declared.

Commercial apple production for Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia was said by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics to be fully one-third less than last year or approximately 3,155,000 barrels. The total commercial crop of apples is expected to be about 6 per cent larger than last year's crop, but close to 5 per cent less than the five-year average.

Sweet potatoes are showing the lowest condition since records were first kept, 60 years ago, the bureau stated. The production forecast of 66,251,000 bushels will be approximately 22 per cent less than last year's crop and 11 per cent less than the short-time average.

Yellow varieties from Virginia were said to be bringing from $5.50 to $7.50 a barrel.

Movements of peaches dropped sharply during the first ten days of August. Most shipments this week have been from California, but a larger portion of these were for canneries and drying plants. The Southeastern shipping season is drawing to a close.

Some recovery in prices of watermelons has been noticed. Leading shipping stations report firm to slightly stronger price conditions.

Washington dealers said that the tomato crop had been especially hard hit and that there is scarcely no spinach of the flat-leaf variety. Apples have been fairly plentiful in the Capital but of a poor quality. Peaches are coming in from the South.

Cantaloupes have been surprisingly plentiful locally. Prices on California fruits have been fairly moderate.

St. Elizabeths Patient Fails to Gain Release

Thomas Moss, who is alleged to have threatened Representative Charles L. Abernathy, of North Carolina, yesterday was returned to St. Elizabeths Hospital after Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court had overruled his application for habeas corpus.

Moss, who was arrested in 1929, is alleged to have had two pistols and 100 rounds of ammunition in a suitcase. He was cited before the court at the time and was remanded to St. Elizabeths. Yesterday's finding of the court follows his petition for release. Assistant United States Attorney James F. Hughes appeared for the Government, while Attorney E. Russel Kelly, at the behest of the court, appeared for the petitioner.

Man Asks Annulment On Ground of Bigamy

Claiming that his wife had been married twice before she married him and was not legally divorced from either of his predecessors, Raymond E. Maust, a policeman, yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court, seeking an annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Dorothy J. Maust. Attorney John D. Fitzgerald appears for the policeman.

Maust asserts that at the time he married the woman she told him she was single. Later, he says, he discovered she had two other living husbands from whom she had not been divorced. The policeman avers that when he learned of the situation he directed his wife to move from their home and that he has not lived with her since that time.

Beauty Shop Involved In $50,000 Damages

Alleging that she had been permanently disfigured while undergoing a beauty treatment, Mary U. Healy, of 1900 P street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $50,000 damages from Emile, Inc., and others, alleged to be operators of the beauty shop.

The woman tells the court that she went to the establishment for the first time in April, 1926, for treatment and continued going there until November, 1927. During the period, she states, employes of the defendants negligently exposed her face, chin, throat and body to electricity, resulting in serious injuries. Attorneys James Sherier and Thomas J. Healy appear for the plaintiff.

Woman Seeks $50,000, Alleging Hurts in Cab

Claiming to have been permanently injured last April 26 when the taxicab in which she was a passenger collided with another automobile, Elizabeth Irwin Townsend, of Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $50,000 damages from the Mayflower Taxicab & Sightseeing Service.

The woman says she entered one of the defendant's cabs at the Mayflower Hotel on the date in question. She states the cab was in collision with another automobile, causing her to be thrown forcibly about the interior of the cab and inflicting serious injuries. Attorneys H. Ralph Burton and Tench T. Marye appear for the plaintiff.

Bonds of $500 Posted By Couple in Rum Case

Eugene Talbot, 56 years old, and his wife, Emma Talbot, 48 years old, were yesterday arrested by Fifth Precinct police on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. They were released on $500 bond.

Police raided their home on Eleventh street, near B street, southeast, and confiscated 4 gallons of alleged liquor.

Man Asks Bankruptcy.

Morris Greber, of 1134 Seventh street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt. He listed liabilities of $5,439.17 and assets of $2,003.80. Attorney John S. Meaney appears for the petitioner.

DISTRICT DEFENDANT IN $5,000 LAWSUIT

Plaintiff Charges Trespass on Condemned Property in Unusual Case.

ALSO ASKS INJUNCTION

Alleging that condemnation proceedings by which the District government acquired part of the property designated on the tax records as Parcel 24-51 were illegal, Herbert L. Walther, of 5028 Wisconsin avenue northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $5,000 for alleged unlawful trespass, and asking an injunction to restrain the District from claiming any title or interest in any portion of the property. The suit is one of the most unusual ever brought in the court in that it attacks action of the same court in the condemnation case.

Walther, who is one of the heirs of the late Alice S. Walther, sets out that he only learned recently that the property had been involved in condemnation proceedings for the extension of Alton place in 1926. He sets out that the deceased was made a party defendant in the action, but was never served with process and that the court did not appoint a guardian ad litem for one of the heirs, who is a lunatic, or for the minor children of the deceased.

Walther alleges that the District, following the verdict of the condemnation jury, ruined the lawns, cut down trees, broke down fences and otherwise damaged the property. It is for that that he seeks the $5,000 damages.

The injunction is sought because he says the District is claiming ownership in the portion of the parcel which was sought to be condemned. This claim, he states, is a cloud on the title and interferes with his rights and the rights of other heirs in that the records in the condemantion case do not show that the proceedings were illegal and void.

Attorney F. J. Ehrhardt appears for the petitioner.

PIPE LINE BUILDING AIDS STEEL PLANTS

Development Provides Only Noticeable Activity in Industry.

TO SPEND $250,000,000

Cleveland, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The post-Civil War period of railroad construction has a counterpart today in pipe-line building for long-distance delivery of natural gas and gasoline.

Pipe-line construction and the manufacture of pipe gives promise of being a leading industrial development of 1930, says a survey just completed by the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland.

This development, the survey notes, is providing the "only noticeable activity" in the steel industry.

Consumption of natural gas, it was found, has increased from 662,000,000,000 cubic feet in 1921 to 1,900,000,000,000 last year, with the value of the output reaching approximately $450,000,000.

There now are approximately 80,000 miles of natural gas lines, costing $2,000,000,000, in the country, the survey showed, and it is estimated 1930 will see $250,000,000 spent for additional lines.

Known supplies of natural gas, the bank found, will be sufficient to last between 50 and 165 years.

Before 1927 transportation of gas over a distance of 250 miles was deemed remarkable. Now the St. Louis industrial district is supplied with natural gas through a 450-mile pipe line from Louisiana.

These projects under consideration are listed in the survey: A 950-mile line from Amarillo field, Tex., to Chicago; extension of the present Southern-California-San Francisco line to Oregon and Washington; extension of the line system in the Rockies to Butte and other Montana communities, and construction of necessary additions to serve mixed gas to certain cities along the Atlantic seaboard.

This movement is attributed to inventions in the steel industry, making possible production of pipe capable of withstanding enormous pressure and giving assurances against leaks.

Device Smooths Railway Travel.

Berlin, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Willy Abel, who invented the stamp and railway ticket automats, has patented an accordion-like device to go between the ends of railroad rails and keep to a minimum the jolts caused by the spaces. The device accommodates itself to rail expansions and contractions caused by weather.

COURT WILL SETTLE INSURANCE DISPUTE

Brother and Sister Both Claim Benefits Under Policy of Mother.

COMPANY BRINGS ACTION

The District Supreme Court yesterday was asked to determine whether Mae J. Gibson, of 3100 Connecticut avenue northwest, or Thomas F. Patterson, of 505 K street northeast, is the beneficiary under a $1,000 policy on the life of Mary J. Patterson, who died May 10, at Hyattsville, Md. The Royal Neighbors of America, a benevolent organization with principal offices in Rock Island, Ill., is the petitioner.

Both the woman and the man claim to be the beneficiary and each is named on a benefit certificate, the petition states. It is explained that the man was named beneficiary in a certificate issued May 2, 1921, and the woman in one issued December 28, 1929. The latter certificate, the organization avers, was issued after the deceased had signed a waiver of lost certificate, setting out that the benefit certificate theretofore could not be surrendered because it had been lost, mislaid or stolen by persons unknown.

Patterson, who is a son of the deceased, claims, according to the organization's petition, that the certificate which is held by Mrs. Gibson, a daughter of the deceased, was obtained through forgery or through fraud, trickery or deceit.

The organization sets out that it is merely a stakeholder of the $1,000, and is willing to pay the money, but does not desire to decide the merits of the controversy between the brother and the sister. It sets out that there is no collusion between it and any of the parties involved, and that it is desirous of paying the money into the registry of the court and letting the tribunal decide to whom it shall be paid. The organization also asks the court to enjoin both the brother and the sister from ever prosecuting any suit or suits against it for the amount due on the certificate.

Governor Offers Drought Remedies

Idahoan, Before Leaving for Conference, Suggests Relief Plans.

Des Moines, Iowa., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Three suggestions for action by President Hoover's drought relief conference were made by Gov. John Hammill today before leaving for Washington to attend the meeting.

"I should be in favor," he said, "of extending immediately whatever relief is needed in the badly stricken areas. It also may be necessary for the Federal Farm Board to arrange for furnishing seed for next year's planting in some sections of the country.

"A third thing that probably will have to be done is for the board to finance a movement of surplus grains from sections where there is a surplus to drought sections."

Suffered For Years With Red Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with blackheads which later formed pimples that were inflamed. The pimples were hard and red and burned a lot, causing me to rub them. I suffered with them for years.

"I tried all kinds of remedies but they did not help me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few weeks the trouble began to clear up, and after using one and a half cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." DROUGHT RELIEF.

President Hoover has shrewdly called in the heads of States to deal with the drought emergency. The States affected should bear the brunt of the trouble and expense of relieving the people who are suffering. It is only too easy to run to the United States Government for help. In this instance the States should be on their mettle, proving their self-reliance and ability to care for their own people.

The President can help best by acting as the medium for coordinating the relief work, and by suggesting methods of organization. In this field he is unmatched by any other individual in the world. But he should not be asked to assume in behalf of the Government the responsibility for relieving State distresses. If it should be found that any State has a problem too big to handle, no doubt an appeal by the President would meet with quick response by the American public.

The drought has created various problems, which must be dealt with according to the nature of the problem. Probably it will be found that actual charity relief will be a comparatively small part of the work that lies ahead. The Red Cross is the most suitable agency for directing this work, which will follow investigations by local chapters.

Accurate information is the first essential of relief operations. The investigators must do their work by communities and counties. An ideal local organization would consist of a county agent of the Department of Agriculture, a county commissioner or supervisor, a Red Cross representative, and a railroad representative. They are available everywhere, and could be put into activity by telegraph. The assembling of this information will tell what is needed from the States, the Government, and the public.

Demands are already being made for Federal contributions to farmers in the drought areas. It is suggested that money should be advanced without security for the purchase of seed for next year, and for other farm expenses. Fortunately no authority exists for broaching the Treasury in response to excited demands that may or may not be based upon knowledge of the facts. Until the situation can be investigated no one can tell where or how relief should be applied. Emergency relief can be given by agencies already in existence, with money that will be gladly supplied by the public at the President's request. Later, if conditions should call for Federal appropriations for drought relief, they will be forthcoming after Congress has possession of information upon which to base practical legislation.

A splendid opportunity is now open to the governors of the drought-stricken States. The chief responsibility for energetic action rests upon them.

COASTAL SHIPPING WAR.

Chairman T. F. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, has taken a hand in the American intercoastal trade rate war with a threat of Federal regulation unless the shipping companies agree to a plan to end their ruinous competition. The steamship representatives returned to New York after agreeing to hold further conferences. But it is apparent that the rate war is not yet at an end.

Competition for the intercoastal shipping trade is particularly keen just now because of the business depression. Traffic is reported to be about 25 per cent below normal, and some operators have been forced to lay up tonnage. This situation makes profitable operation difficult, yet it has been accentuated by disastrous rate-cutting. Each company in seeking to attract more trade to its own lines is thereby bringing calamity upon the whole intercoastal shipping trade.

The Government is indirectly interested in the intercoastal fleets because of its desire to build up the American merchant marine. It is directly interested as a creditor of the lines that have been turned over to private concerns. This timely warning from the Shipping Board ought to be heeded, but if the shipping interests are not inclined to agree, Federal regulation may be the only satisfactory solution.

The board has no control over domestic shipping rates at present, but Mr. O'Connor intends to ask Congress to give the board authority similar to that exercised over railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission, if such a step is deemed necessary when Congress reconvenes. Self-regulation through agreement is always preferable to Government control. It is to be hoped that the shipping concerns will patch up their differences and set up a stable rate structure. The merchant marine is confronted with many other difficulties and there is no excuse for wasting its strength through an intercoastal rate war.

NO VACATION FOR HOOVER.

An unfortunate series of circumstances has resulted in the cancellation of President Hoover's vacation trip to the West. Plans for the trip were made in the late spring, when it appeared that the President would be able to get away from his desk for a few weeks. But there was delay in enacting the tariff bill, followed by the special session of the Senate for ratification of the naval treaty. Since the Senate adjourned the President has been busy trying to reorganize the Tariff Commission and dispose of a number of pressing problems that have been laid at the door of the White House. Just as circumstances were shaping themselves in favor of a presidential tour of the Western National Parks the drought became so serious that Mr. Hoover has decided to remain in Washington and devote all his energies to the campaign for relief and rehabilitation.

Mr. Hoover has not had a real vacation since he entered the White House. By the time his conferences on the drought are over it will be too late in the season to visit the Western parks, and if he is to have a vacation at all, he will have to turn his attention elsewhere. Abandonment of the Western trip will cause widespread regret, not only from those communities which expected a visit from the President, but from all citizens who wished to see him get a few weeks' relief from official duties.

Apparently no substitute vacation plans have been arranged. It is to be hoped, however, that the President will find time this fall to take a vacation trip somewhere. He may find an opportunity to complete his visit to Latin America, particularly Mexico and Cuba. But whatever course is taken, the President can only be commended for his decision to remain in or near Washington so long as drought relief measures call for his personal attention.

SHIP RIVALRY.

With the United States committed to the project of reestablishing the merchant marine and the Government pledged by legislation to render aid to private interests engaged in shipbuilding and ship operation the seafaring nations of Europe have risen to the challenge. England, Germany, France and Italy have built and are building palatial and swift liners specifically for the purpose of meeting the prospective American competition.

From the standpoint of the traveler this race is advantageous. Never before has it been possible to choose accommodations from such a tempting array of offerings. But from the business standpoint the situation is not so encouraging. The overtonnage of passenger ships on the North Atlantic is large enough to cause some concern to shipping men.

A survey recently completed by German shipping experts for the Hamburger Fremdenblatt brings out the fact that in 1926 the North Atlantic lines carried a total of 1,092,347 passengers east and west bound, whereas in 1929 the total had risen to 1,225,435. This was an increase of 12.2 per cent. In the same period, however, there was an increase of 567,800 gross tons, or 34.5 per cent in passenger vessels assigned to this trade. At present the thirteen companies operating ships on the North Atlantic lanes have a total of 82 vessels engaged in the service. These ships gross 1,745,484 tons and have a total passenger capacity of 1,028,093. The German experts say that an average of about 50 per cent of the accommodations available are unsold.

As new vessels are commissioned this situation will become more serious. It is impossible, of course, to operate ships to full capacity throughout the year. Facilities must be held available to care for the rush at the beginning and end of the vacation season. But the shipping companies will play a losing hand unless they can increase the average earnings per ship. They will transfer older vessels to other routes, and will exert every effort to capture the cream of the transatlantic business. This portends a sharp rivalry, in which foreign governments will support their respective ship lines as against American competition. Inasmuch as Americans are the most numerous patrons of the transatlantic lines, there is abundant reason for Government encouragment of construction and operation of the finest and fastest ships on the Atlantic. Such vessels are most useful of all merchant types as auxiliary cruisers.

EXPORTING ENGLISHMEN.

That idealistic issue which John Galsworthy exploited in his "Modern Comedy" under the name of "Foggartism" has apparently entered the realm of practical politics in England. The novelist pictured Parliament as paying no attention to the schemes of a young politician to bring about wholesale emigration to the colonies. But current reports from London indicate that the Labor cabinet has drawn up plans with that very objective in view.

Schemes for draining the excessive labor supply out of England into the colonies have been formulated, and as readily shattered, for many years. The theory behind the movement is that England would be relieved of its unemployment and the colonies would so increase in population that they would furnish a much larger market for British goods. The theorists would thus kill two birds with one stone. But they have never dared to attempt to throw the stone.

That the Labor government is now planning to do so indicates that it is in desperate straits. More than 2,000,000 men without work are drawing a dole from the government to keep from starvation. The Labor party has been incapable of dealing with the situation, and the unemployment problem hangs like a millstone around its neck. Driven to desperation, Premier MacDonald has apparently turned to "Foggartism."

There are a number of reasons why this emigration scheme is doomed to failure. In the first place the dominions have unemployment problems of their own. How can they absorb the workless millions of Britain, when their own people are in need of jobs? There is some talk about developing new regions in the dominions, but if there are such regions that can be profitably developed at this time it is probable that the dominions would think of their own needs first. If the Labor administration is to invest millions of pounds in projects that are not inviting to private capital, it may end by making a bad matter worse.

The fundamental weakness in the scheme is that the government would be required to ask Englishmen to leave their native soil. The average Englishman does not want to live in South Africa or Australia, and in most cases he is not fitted for the kind of work that he might find there. When a country attempts to solve its economic problems by deporting its people it is indeed in desperate straits. If this issue is brought squarely before the people, it may serve to illustrate the necessity of a policy that will build up British industry at home.

One cool place these days is the steam room of a Turkish bath.

Paris summer rainfall sets a 55-year record. Is this tariff retaliation?

It takes a drought to make some people realize that water is a necessity.

A drought has one advantage. One doesn't have to cut his grass quite so often these days.

If this drought continues long enough the bootlegger may yet gain a respectable name in society.

Another theory to explain the drought is that the weather has just caught the endurance record fever.

Probably the next reform proposed will be to take the Republicans and the Democrats out of politics.

THE HAIRPIN REVIVAL

From the Boston Transcript.

There are signs all about us that the hairpin has seen its worst days. In the year before the World War, Birmingham, England, manufactured 4,700,000 pounds of them; in 1928, not a million pounds. In this country the industry similarly languished, following the decline and fall of the cotton stocking. But the skies are clearing. Nowadays, wherever you look, you will note that a considerable sprinkling of women are letting their hair grow long again. You see them trying to capture stray locks and loose tendrils with deft, fluttering fingertips, and then securing them with hairpins. And the faces of the hairdressers who have made fortunes out of the bobbed-hair fashion begin to be sicklied o'er with the pale cast of anxiety. They are haunted by fear that the hairpin is on its way back again into feminine favor.

The hairpin, indeed, has the lives of a cat. From the creation down to Queen Shubad of Ur, whose exquisite hairpins were buried with her more than 3,000 years ago, and after her through all the changes of dynasties in Egypt and Mesopotamia and Greece, the hairpin has endured amazing vicissitudes. Eve surely wore hairpins, perhaps slender forked twigs from the fatal tree in Eden. Perhaps Lilith wore them and won Adam's heart thereby. In the days of Egypt's glory, during the fifteenth century B. C., the girls and young women of Thebes and Agydos little by little introduced the fashion of bobbing their hair until it became as popular as it is in Boston today. It was during this period that the Queen of Sheba came from down that way to visit King Solomon, and it may be that the lady first introduced the bob to the gaping populace of Jerusalem. Long, long afterward, when Cleopatra appeared upon the scene, the influence of Greece and of Grecian civilization prevailed in the land of the Pharaohs, and, if we may trust the coins bearing her effigy, long hair was the fashion, and the hairpin manufacturers of Alexandria found themselves working overtime to supply the demand for their wares. We find no traces of bobbed hair during Rome's Augustan age, nor during the years of the empire's decadence. The women of the Renaissance kept to the hairpins of their mothers. We can imagine the discipline that would have been imposed upon a Puritan girl who had bobbed her hair. We fear that the ducking-stool, or at the very least the stocks, would have been her portion.

Some persons still living recall the sad shaking of heads when, somewhat after the middle of the last century, Anna Dickinson and Dr. Mary Walker appeared in public with short hair. If it was not immoral it was the next thing to it, like singing or playing secular music on Sunday, and using olive oil as a salad dressing. If you were properly brought up you didn't do such things. But we are now living and moving in a grand and awful time. Will the boyish bob, so cool and comfortable, so becoming to a young and shapely head, continue to flourish, or is a hairpin turn ahead of us? Who can say?

DIFFICULTIES.

Because the task is difficult don't quickly let it go.
The harder is the thing to do the greater joy they know Who stick it out and see it through;
Who try and fail and try anew
And work it over, bit by bit
Until they do accomplish it.

"I can't do this," the weakling cries, and gives it up as vain,
But still the harder is the feat, the greater is the gain.
One thing is sure: he never will Who says "I can't" and then sits still.
But he retains a chance to win
Who has no thought of giving in.

'Twixt worth and mediocrity, the difference is wide.
The good man sees his problems through: the other lets them slide.
The strong man at a task will stick
And work it out through thin or thick.
The weaker cries: "I plainly see
That job is much too hard for me."

Because the task is difficult too many tire and quit,
But that's the time to summon up your patience and your grit,
And that's the time to prove your skill.
So stick it out and work until
You justify your faith that you
Can do what any man can do.

Happiness Is the Present State of Those Who Work in Hope of Happiness.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"I KNOW what happiness is," said Stevenson, "for I have done good work."

For my part, I know what happiness is, for I have worked hard and earned a reward.

Youth is happy, as kittens and pups are, because it is full of energy and free of bodily ills.

But when youth is gone, happiness must be earned.

I was happy because I did all of the things necessary to earn happiness.

I owned a print shop and a newspaper and worked with my hands from morning till night—skilled work in which a craftsman could take honest pride.

I was paying for a home and doing my utmost to establish a profitable business, and each month saw me nearer my goal.

At night I went home to a wife and child who kept me company while I worked in the yard—planting trees, making a garden, trimming hedges.

When darkness fell I changed jobs and wrote until midnight.

I needed only health and friends to make happiness complete, and I had both.

Wise men have suggested many methods for the winning of happiness, but it is not a prize to be won—it is a result that comes unawares when conditions are right.

To be happy, a man must use all of his faculties and capacities; he must have obstacles to overcome; and his labor must bring him ever nearer to a reward he greatly desires.

To labor hopelessly is to live in misery; to live in idleness is to be sodden or to endure insufferable boredom; to work, however profitably, without the inspiration afforded by some greatly desired prize is to be a plow horse.

At 43 I have regular hours of idleness—for a writer, like the hen, must gather material for a new egg—and I envy younger men who pant after some prize and keep so everlastingly busy that they escape the boredom we call unhappiness.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NIGHT GOLF.

Kansas City now has a course for golf at night. If the idea spreads it will be a great thing for the Nation. Millions of people will then pay attention to business in the daytime.

• • • •

If you want to interview a business man today you have to make an appointment with him in some gully, ditch or sand trap.

• • • •

He comes to the office only to see that all the help is in and he remains only long enough to arrange for an all-day industrial conference with the three other captains of industry in the meadows of the nearest golf club.

• • • •

Most of the country's business troubles today can be blamed on day golf. No country can prosper indefinitely when a majority of its master minds are staggering around suburban acreage hunting for lost golf balls instead of staying in the office looking for lost business.

• • • •

Night golf will give American business a break. It may be the hope of the Nation. Players may not be able to see the ball as well at night, but why complain? The trouble with the game is that too many players are able to find the mall for their second shot.

• • • •

And night golf will be better on the eyes of spectators. After watching the average player, you can't help feeling that he should be compelled to do all his golfing in total darkness.

• • • •

There will be complaints by players that they can't see where their ball went, but that will be a welcome influence. It's having an idea where the ball went that slows up the game so much.

• • • •

Golf by night should leave the players in a better mood. A man can play with his conscience unburdened by the realization that he is not doing right by the stockholders. He can do his divot-digging without the psychological handicap of knowing it means another family uproar if he gets home late for dinner.

• • • •

He can proceed to wear himself into a complete state of exhaustion without that sinking feeling that comes with knowing that when the game is over he will have to go out to the theater or to play bridge with the wife.

• • • •

And the wives and children will get a break, too. A husband and father out on the golf course at night is more to be desired than one at home all evening describing the birdies he missed by an inch.

• • • •

All in all, night golf should be encouraged. It has long been a wonder to most of us that President Hoover's business restoration commission hadn't ordered it.

SUGGESTIONS FOR DRY AGENT COLLEGIANS.

Prohibition Enforcement Chief Amos W. Woodcock has founded a college for the training of dry agents. Suggestion for a cheer:

Razzle dazzle! Razzle dazzle!
Sis! Boom! Ah!
Padlock! Padlock!
Rah! Rah! Rah!

• • • •

And a college song will be required, of course. Something like:

Fighting for Amos (Woodcock) and Andy (Volstead).

• • • •

Thomas Edison refused to see Zaro Agha, the 186-year-old Turk, the other day. He probably was just tired of children.

It took Capt. Frank M. Hawks 14 hours and 50 minutes to fly from coast to coast the other day. Poor gas, probably.

"Appeal to Hoover for Drought Relief."—headline. There is probably a feeling that he should appoint a rain commission.

However, it will be all right with most of us as long as the President doesn't declare the weather fundamentally sound.

Walter Hagen failed to qualify in the professional golfers tournament this year. This is just another calamity to blame on the Hoover administration.

(Copyright, 1930.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Here's One Answer to Edison's Question—What's Yours?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an ardent admirer of Thomas A. Edison I was interested in the outcome of his scholarship examination. Of the questions put to the youthful contestants probably the one that stirred the most widespread interest is the so-called "desert problem." The question as stated was:

You are the head of an expedition which has come to grief in the desert. There is enough food and water left to enable three persons to get to the nearest outpost of civilization. The rest must perish. Your companions are a brilliant scientist, 60 years; two half-breed guides, ages 58 and 32; the scientist's wife, age 39; her little son, age 6; the girl you are engaged to marry; your best friend, a young man of your own age, who has shown great promise in the field of science, and yourself. Which would you choose to live and which to die? Give your reasons.

Of all the questions this one necessitates the most careful consideration. No matter which choice is made there still remains plenty of room for argument.

Undoubtedly the leader of the expedition should remain with those compelled to die. That decision can be readily understood. However, a guide would be necessary to accompany the party to the nearest outpost of civilization. If this expedition escaped it might be advisable for the guide to organize a rescue party and return to the others, who in the meanwhile might have managed to exist. The choice of men for this purpose depends entirely upon the individual. The younger would supply the stamina; the older, the experience or judgment.

The 60-year-old scientist had probably done his life work. He could not expect to live as long as others who might be saved, for he had passed the average span of life. His wife would probably prefer to remain with him. The 6-year-old son would more than likely die of hardships encountered during the journey. The expedition leader's best friend would refuse to leave him in such a predicament. Also, the girl, for if she actually loved him she would stick it out with the rest. If either of these two desired to go I would permit them to do so, especially since they were young and the man had shown great promise in the field of science.

I feel it would be advisable to save the younger guide, the 60-year-old scientist and the best friend. In case the latter refused my next best bet would be the girl.

ROBERT M'INTIRE.

The Relation of Bad Debts to Hard Times as Construed by Mr. Russell.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Actions to recover delinquent debts are being brought in the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia at the rate of 20,000 per year. This number does not include landlord or criminal cases. If the per capita delinquency for the District holds good throughout the States, it means that 5,000,000 debt suits are being brought every year in the petty courts of the country. Collection costs in these cases run from 30 to 50 per cent of the amounts collected and in a large proportion of the cases no collections are made. At $100 per case, this petty bad debt business runs to $2,000,000 per year for the District and to $500,000,000 per year for the country at large. This figure does not take account of unsatisfied money judgments in the courts of several jurisdictions.

The Attorney General announced a few days ago that in 1929 credit losses through bankruptcy amounted to $750,000,000. In 1927 there were 48,269 bankrupts listing obligations of $885,000,000, who filed petitions for discharge in the Federal courts. In the fifteen years from 1913 to 1927, inclusive, 426,513 adjudicated bankrupts, with $6,091,000,000 of obligations, were discharged under the Federal bankruptcy act.

These bankruptcy discharges do not cover the great number of unsatisfied and insatiable judgments which do not find their way to formal bankruptcy schedules, and they do not cover the great number of deadbeat debts, which never find their way to judgment.

From these facts we may be certain that dead-beat credit losses run to more than a billion dollars a year in the United States. This reflects a tremendous dissipation of credit even for a prosperous country. It should not be overlooked that this constant accumulation of State debts is an important contributory factor in the tightness of the times.

SAMUEL RUSSELL.

Raised on Pitchers' Battles, Old Fan Now Converted to Swatfests.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When last spring, on account of some unexpected circuit clouts by the then lowly Griffs, a writer asserted that this was to be "a home-run baseball season," I thought he was fooling. But I guess I'll have to admit it was a straight hunch, as I see by the papers that the record of the two big leagues for four-baggers will be broken this year, with 1,600 altogether, if the pace so far set is maintained.

I am not sorry for this increase in slugging, although there was a time when nothing pleased me better than a pitchers' battle. Perhaps I am carried away by the yells of the great crowd of fans who fill the modern ball parks and who are gluttons for base hits.

I now enjoy the crack of the bat as I never did before, because I was brought up on close games, when Walter Johnson was in his prime. Today one pitchers' duel looks a good deal like any other as far as I am concerned.

Of course, clean fielding, steady pitching and heavy hitting always make the best sort of a game. But no matter what old-time fans may think, the promiscuous cash customers of the present want some kind of action the field over, and don't feel that they have received their money's worth if the game is not a swatfest.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Folk Attend Races In Saratoga

Entertaining Here. Cornings Among Those Entertaing Here.

FOREMOST among the society leaders who have taken up racing at Saratoga in the past several years are a number of Washingtonians. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter are occupying a cottage there as they did last year, and are doing much entertaining. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard B. Jones, who follow the races around the country with their string of Audley Farm horses, have a villa in Saratoga again this year and are closely watching the track. They expect to have as their guest later this month, Mrs. William E. Borah, who, with Senator Borah, is now at Poland Springs. The senator will go to Idaho from the Northern resort, and will join Mrs. Borah there later in the fall.

For the past several years Mrs. George Mesta, of New York and Washington, has been dividing her summers between Newport and Saratoga, and has been welcoming the month of August and the inauguration of the racing events. This year Mrs. Mesta motored to Saratoga from Newport and entertained at a large luncheon on the opening day.

Representative and Mrs. Parker Corning, whose daughter will be presented to society on Long Island early next month and later in Washington, are also at Saratoga for the month. They are entertaining extensively for their daughter and for their own friends. Among their recent guests was Mr. Cleveland Perkins, of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. William B. Street, of Baltimore, the latter the former Miss Lettice Lee Coulling, of Washington, are passing some time there and were recently the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter at a party they gave for their son, Mr. Thomas Leiter. Mr. Malcolm McConihe, jr., Miss Victoria Tytus, Mr. Randolph Burke and Mr. Robert R. Hitt are among the younger Washington contingent partaking in the racing season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrington Mills, who have for many seasons spent their summers at Saranac, N. Y., have arrived at Saratoga and are stopping at the Grand Union.

The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, who are passing the summer in Newport, have gone to Saratoga to spend some time with Representative and Mrs. Parker Corning and to attend the large dinner which the latter gave recently at the Arrowhead Inn.

Becalmed Vessel Brought to Port

Coast Guard Cutter Saves Schooner's Crew; Food Was Getting Low.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The four-masted schooner Chinquiguia, which called for the aid of a Coast Guard cutter several days ago, reached port today, three weeks overdue from Venezuela.

Capt. Fred Tibbets said the ship had been seventeen days at sea in a calm that left it helpless, the sails slack, food and water almost gone. During that time the ship traveled less than 50 miles. The schooner was 33 days making port from South America, with a cargo of guano.

The master and crew watched for ten days before a passing vessel was sighted. In response to their signals, the vessel sent a wireless call for aid to the naval base at St. Petersburg. A Coast Guard boat went to the becalmed ship and towed it to the Tampa Bay bar and a tug brought it into port.

Invalid Artist, 21, Dead in Augusta

Famous Silhouette Maker Yields to Lifetime Sickness.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Joseph Cranston Jones, 21-year-old silhouette artist of international fame, is dead here. An invalid for nineteen years, the prodigy, whose imagination, technique and accuracy of design drew acclaim from the masters, died at his home yesterday.

Tuberculosis afflicted his spine when he was 2 years old. He tried to enter school when he was 6, but was sensitive about his affliction and never returned after the first recess.

His mother, a widow, devoted her time to him. He sat in a wheelchair when not in bed.

He was 15 when some Atlanta women discovered him in a Scottish Rite home for crippled children. They showed his work to well-known artists, and Joseph was proclaimed a genius. His name soon became a by-word among silhouette lovers and soon he could not fill requests for his work. His favorite subject was animals and he continued his work until a few days before he died.

Dog, Hero of World War, Carries Wounds to Grave

Old Cap, Who Served in French Red Cross and Had to Learn English in Adopted Land, Dies at Age of 15 Years.

Ware, Mass., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The gates of Valhalla swung wide today to admit another good soldier, a four-footed comrade.

Old Cap, or Captain, as he was more formally known, is dead, at the age of 18, a ripe old age for a dog who bore the wounds of French battlefields, and in his lungs the searing burns of gas.

Cap, a wire-haired griffon, served during the World War and with distinction, with the French Red Cross. It was his duty, and he performed it well, to seek out in the tangle of barbed wire and gaping shell holes the wounded two-legged comrades.

Since he was mustered out, he made his home here with Dennis F. Shea, State game warden of the district, but he never forgot his war experiences. Nothing could lure him close to barbed-wire fences, for he associated them with a leaden hail and sudden death. When an American Army officer brought him to Ware eleven years ago there was a bald patch on the back of his head, caused by the chafing of his gas mask, but this soon grew out again. He had a pleasant, bewhiskered face that made him a favorite with all children, but he would not make friends with strange adults.

One of the first problems that faced him when he came here was to learn the language of his adopted country, for he understood only French. He soon mastered English.

Cap's grave is beside Warden Shea's camp up in the Prescott Hills, and there were many moist eyes today among those who saw him to his last rest.

G. O. P. ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF MRS. LOUISE M. DODSON

quarters yesterday that Mrs. Dodson's resignation would be accepted in ten days came as a surprise. The explanation was that Mrs. Dodson insisted upon it.

Now it develops that there was no truth in the Huston story. Mrs. Dodson has no grievance with him at all.

As near as can be learned, with Mrs. Dodson herself refusing to discuss the matter, is that the women look upon the director of women's activities as, well, at least, almost coequal with the national chairman. Now, inasmuch as Mrs. Dodson came in with Mr. Huston it was considered proper and fitting that she should submit her resignation along with his—like they do in the Cabinet when a new administration comes in.

But this does not necessarily mean that she could not have been a holdover, just as Secretaries Mellon and Davis are in the Hoover Cabinet.

As one recalls it the women of the executive committee meeting last week outnumbered the men. They had received a letter from Mr. Huston saying important business was to be transacted and had taken him at his word. Mrs. J. Werthington Scranton had told her Pennsylvania townspeople that she had to come to Washington on important political business, and Mrs. Ella Yost, committeewoman from West Virginia, but who keeps the W. C. T. U. shop down near the Capitol, had closed it up to attend the meeting. There were others who attended in the same serious vein. A lot of the men members paid no attention to the meeting and as a result there were eight women and seven men present.

In the first place the seven men got together the night before and worked out everything, not even giving the women a thought.

Then, when everybody got together very formally the next morning, the agreed-upon manner of disposing of Mr. Huston and appointing Senator Fess in his place went off smoothly, and next came the agreed-upon business of appointing a director of the executive committee and a secretary.

Then what started out to be a formal reading of the formal resignation of Mrs. Dodson came up. Perhaps one of the women intended to move that Mrs. Dodson be retained. Surely the women were there for something.

But was there a discussion or anything at all formal when the reading of the letter was concluded? There was not.

Some man simply observed, "Oh, that's a matter for the chairman," or words to that effect, and the letter went into the basket with a lot of papers from people telling about what success awaited the Republicans this fall.

It left the women in a very indignant mood. Back in the campaign honeymoon the men were very solicitous about them. Now that it is over—well, that's the way men get.

And as the days passed Senator Fess did nothing about the matter. The man did not seem to appreciate that it was a crisis or a major matter at all. There is reason to believe that Mrs. Dodson balled, which is simply to say she symbolizes the issue. It is not believed to be a personal matter with her at all.

Then a couple of days ago she went to Senator Fess and insisted that her resignation be accepted. What did he do then? He would not even argue, so to speak. He simply said:

"All right. I'll attend to it when I get back."

Isn't that just exactly like a man—especially Senator Fess?

As a matter of fact, the women do not believe that Senator Fess has the authority to accept Mrs. Dodson's resignation, to say nothing of naming her successor. They do not agree that it is a "matter for the chairman."

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART

Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.

Cast of Characters.

Lindy Marsden—Lonely, lovely, a dark-eyed romanticist, and mistress of Lady Court.

Doug King—Hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.

Neil Sheridan—Black, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and husband of—

Trudi—Wise, witty and chic, with all the ease and manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a fishwife.

Chatty Ross—Small, coy, blandly adoring wife of—

Tom Ross—The least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive amongst his wealthy friends.

Hanna Dart—A gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband.

Gavin Dart—A rather tired and enormously successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.

Ray Hardy—The youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with—

Joel Hardy—Her charming and irresponsible husband, who has not grown a minute older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton—Graceful and gracious stepsister of that legendary Sunny, the beloved girl, whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

Larry Redmond—An agreeable young banker, who can not understand why Jill hates him.

Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who, in his casual way, does every romantic thing magnificently well.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered, on Halloween at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way, some one starts a graphophone. The record is "Underneath the Stars." Sunny's tune. Sunny herself, whom every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.

Kit entertains with a few songs. Lindy then tells him why she arranged the party. She confesses her love for him, proposes; while in another part of the house Larry proclaims his love to Jill.

Kit and Doug quarrel when Lindy objects (for the moment) to dancing with King. The situation is saved when Lindy relates a murder story concerning early relatives who occupied Lady Court.

Lindy corners Kit again and teases him about being jealous of Doug. Later, as she chants "Mirror, mirror . . ." Kit's face appears in the glass, which she drops. The mirror is broken and Doug is furious. Kit discovers a bridge has washed out and the party is marooned.

Halloween games continue until some one suggests cards and dice until midnight. Kit makes a big winning at poker and Doug is the victim. Comes midnight and time for "Hide in the Dark." Lights go out; everybody scampers to different parts of the house. Doug (who is to hide) is found by Jill on the sofa, dead—murdered—and the house is in confusion.

Lights go on and the party reassembles in the living room. Gavin Dart is selected as chief inquisitor, unofficially. He outlines the situation.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

"Cross-Examination"

"You seem a bit down on the law and the press," commented Kit dryly.

"Oh, I'm holding no brief for or against them. I'm telling you that the very essence of cross-examination is to disgrace and discredit the poor wretch on the stand in order to make the damaging testimony wrested from him by due process of law seem false, worthless, and, if possible, perjured. Twelve men and the world are listening to it."

Kit drawled: "You make it sound highly unattractive. All right, suppose we all endeavor to keep off the witness stand! I'll promise to answer any and all of your questions promptly enough to please even the police, but, of course, I take it for granted that you hardly expect that even the most self-sacrificing of us is going to tie a noose around his neck in order to keep his friends and relatives away from the horrid rigors of cross-examination? I imagine that you'll have to take our answers with a little more than the proverbial grain of salt. I doubt whether even you will be able to convince us that confession is good for the soul at this stage of the game."

"Thanks," said Gavin Dart. "Neither optimism nor credulity are listed particularly high in my list of virtues. I'll not expect more candor than you'd show the police. I'll content myself with stating that it will simplify things if you'll all try to tell the truth."

"Then we're off," said the red-headed young man. "How would our enemies, the police, start in?"

"In all probability, after the good old classic formula—the one that was invented by Cain's pursuers, I imagine," he smiled gravely, but the tired eyes did not smile. "They'd undoubtedly endeavor to equip at least one of us with the eternal triangle of the means, the motive and the opportunity. If that attempt proved too idealistic, they'd make for the essential clue. Failing even that, they'd cast a regretful eye on the Spanish Inquisition and get down to brass tacks. * * * Suppose we follow in their steps and aim first for the ideal—the means."

He paused, scrutinizing the lifted circle of faces with a look that was suddenly terrifyingly impersonal.

"Doug King was murdered with a knife. That knife must be somewhere in this house—it is entirely within the realms of possibility that it is in this room. It's hardly likely, you see, that the murderer had time to conceal it very far afield. Every second that passed with it in his possession was perilous to him, naturally, and I imagine that he must have disposed of it at the very first opportunity. * * * Trudi, how long a time should you say elapsed between the last gong and Jill's scream?"

Trudi knit her brows and beneath them the cool eyes traveled back farther—farther still—to that shattered moment of incredulous horror.

"Three minutes, four, perhaps. I couldn't swear."

"You agree with that, Tom?"

"Approximately. It certainly wasn't less than three; it might have been five."

"Any other estimates? Between three and five minutes, then. Now, after the scream, how long should you say before the lights went on, Sherry?"

"Lord, I don't know—about a minute and a half."

"Oh, not so long! Not more than a minute, surely," said Lindy, her lip caught in her teeth in the effort to summon memory back from that dark nightmare of confusion.

"Did it seem longer than a minute or so to any one here?"

Time Established.

Hanna, stirring again from that deep dream of hers, said without turning her head: "It seemed longer than that to me. It seemed * * * forever."

Gavin asked quietly, "Did it strike any one else as over two minutes, let us say?"

"I doubt whether it actually could have been as much as that," Kit remarked casually. "I happened to glance down at my wrist watch a second or so after the light went on. It was exactly 12:10."

"Now that's decidedly helpful, Baird. Well, let's see how our calculations work out. Say that we allow a minute and a half after the clock struck 12 to get to the upper landing and strike the gong; three minutes between the strokes of the gong; four minutes between the starting gong and Jill's scream, and a minute or so between her scream and the time that the lights went on. That would make it about right, wouldn't it?"

"Just about," conceded Kit thoughtfully. "Just about exactly right, if you ask me. Or was it me that you were asking, Gavin?"

"You or any one else, my dear fellow. It's thanks to you that we're able to check it so closely, of course. Then that means that the murderer had barely four minutes between the last gong and Jill's scream. He'd hardly have dared to go blundering about in the darkness in constant danger of discovery with the knife still in his possession, should you think? No. We'll find it in the room, I imagine. By the way, how many of you have pocket knives?"

"Guilty," said Kit promptly. "Bloodstains and all—here, catch!"

He tossed it with an easy turn of the wrist and Gavin Dart raised inquiring brows at the ugly red stain on the neat gold handle.

"Cutting off those violets of Lindy's," explained Kit obligingly. "There's some good damning circumstantial evidence for you! Does that let me in and every one else out, Gavin?"

"Well, hardly. I may be wrong, of course, but this looks entirely too small and inadequate to have made such a ghastly thorough job of it. And of course I was witness to the violet episode. * * * Any others?"

Sherry unhooked a platinum object the length of his little finger and the thickness of a quarter from the end of a miraculous watch chain, and Tom Ross surrendered a more utilitarian object with a rough bone handle and a good, competent girth. Dart flicked it open and sat weighing it thoughtfully in his hands. The circle sat motionless, their eyes riveted on this shining, immaculate expanse of shining blade.

A Missing Knife.

"Does that exhaust the knives?" Well, we'll start in on a systematic search of the premises after we get a bit further with our questions. Naturally, if a knife doesn't materialize, we'll all be subject to a fairly rigorous search before we're permitted to leave the room." The circle of eyes met his, inscrutable and unflinching. If the thought of a rigorous search was a menacing one, the eyes at least were not traitors. "That's agreed, then. By the way, Lindy, were there any knives available around here?"

"There are several in the kitchen, of course, and some in that lacquer cabinet in the corner. Oh, and the one that Doug—" her voice stumbled a little over the name and resumed valiantly, "that Doug was whittling the stick with. Were there any left in the pantry, Trudi?"

"Not as far as I know. Chatty and I put 'em all back in the cabinet."

Kit, his eyes suddenly intent, demanded: "Here, how about that knife of Doug's? It was on the card table over there when I went upstairs. Any one notice it since the lights came on?"

There was a swift, negative murmur, and he swung to his feet, crossing the room to the far corner where the table stood, pushed back against the wall.

"It's gone," he said. For a moment he stood staring down at the table, with its gay, untidy trail of scattered cards, cigarette stubs, ash trays and half empty glasses. Then he asked, not turning his head. "Any one put it away after the game?"

The silence answered for them—no one had put it away after the game.

Out of the silence Joel volunteered. "Well, it was there when you went upstairs, all right! You threw it right back on the table just after you told me how sharp it was, remember? Maybe it's under some of the cards."

"No, it's not under the cards. It's gone. Well, I imagine that gives you your knife, Gavin. Do we hunt it down now or wait till later?"

A Secret Staircase.

"We will search for the knife later, I think. It won't acquire wings in the interim," said Gavin. "Let's move up to our next problem—the opportunity. Suppose we simply take every one's name in order and find out where they were at the time that Jill screamed, a minute or so before the lights went on. You first, Trudi."

"I was up in one of the bedrooms near the head of the stairs—the second one to the right, I think, but it was pitch black and I lost count of the doors. I think it was Chatty's room."

"How about you, Joel"

"Somewhere at the far end of the south corridor on the second floor; there's a whole warren of trunk rooms down there. I haven't the foggiest idea which one I was in. I heard a lot of voices and people running and came on out to see what was up."

"You, Lindy?"

"I was almost in the room—just outside in the hall."

The dark eyes moved slowly from the threshold to the little clear space that had held the sofa, measuring the dreadful briefness of that distance. Something deep in them shuddered and was still.

"You were quite near the light, then. Was it you who turned them on?"

"No. It sounds absurd, I know, but I couldn't move. I couldn't move an inch. You say that you didn't hear her scream, Gavin. It was rather a—rather a dreadful sound. And I was quite close to it. I don't know who turned on the lights."

"I did," said Kit Baird.

"You were in the room, too?"

"No. I was clear across the hall, in the little writing room beyond the library. I came straight on in, as soon as I heard the scream, though. It took me a few seconds to locate the lights, but I'm inclined to agree with Lindy that it wasn't anything like a minute and a half before the lights went on. Well under a minute, I should say."

"I see. Where were you, Tom?"

"I was in the chapel. I'd gone down the service stairs and come through the door from the back corridor."

"Now, Hanna, how about you?"

"I was just outside the door of Lindy's room."

"How were you able to identify it as Lindy's room?"

"It's the far one to the left of the stairs, Gavin. The little one that they call the priest's room—the little one with the pine paneling."

"But how could you know it so positively in the dark?"

"I'd just come out of it—I could feel the paneling under my hand."

She moved the long, beautiful hands slowly, cautiously, as though once more she felt the paneling beneath them.

"And you heard Jill scream?"

"How could any one not have heard her scream?"

"I, for one, didn't hear her," said Gavin Dart quietly.

STAY YOUNG with your family

ARE you really a chum of the rest of the family? Do you join them at their outdoor pleasures, or do household duties keep you indoors?

Stealing Time From the Kitchen

Never let cooking keep you from the fresh air and sunshine. If you want a delicious, satisfying, perfectly balanced luncheon or dinner, containing all the energizing food values that build up health and vitality, you can have it by just heating a can of Mueller's.

No "Filler"— Just the Natural Juices

Luscious, ripe tomatoes and other fresh vegetables, with thoroughly aged whole-milk cheese, and tasty, "fluffy" spaghetti! All cooked to a turn, in a rich, appetizing sauce formed from the natural juices only, without an atom of "filler," coloring or preservative! That's MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI!

Made From Farina

The spaghetti is made from farina—the "heart of the wheat," in its most easily digested form. All ingredients are accurately balanced in the right proportions to assure perfect nourishment, and cooked in bright, sunlit kitchens under the most modern sanitary conditions.

Many Tempting Recipes

All you have to do is to heat the can, open it and serve. Of course, if you want to add other items to the meal—leftover meat, mushrooms, or other suggestions, there are many delightful recipes to use according to your taste. One of these is shown on the right.

You should always have half a dozen cans of MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI ready in your pantry. Ask your grocer today for Mueller's. He has it, or can get it for you.

MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI EN CASSEROLE WITH LEFT-OVER MEAT

1 Can MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI, 1½ Cups left-over meat; 2 Tbsps. melted butter; ½ Tsp. salt; ⅛ Tsp. pepper; ¼ Cup buttered bread crumbs.

Remove cooked spaghetti from can. Combine left-over meat, cut into small cubes, with melted butter, salt, and pepper. Place layer of cooked spaghetti in well-greased casserole, then layer of left-over meat mixture. Alternate layers with cooked spaghetti on top. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Another simple way is to remove the cooked spaghetti from the can, place it in a baking dish, spread a few slices of bacon on top, and put in the oven to heat.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PLEASE tell me the names of the plants from which the inclosed leaves were taken. ...PH K.

One is a species of hardy Acer. The other leaf was from a yellow poplar tree.

Please tell me why the buds of my rose bush fail to mature and tell me the best spray for the Japanese beetle. I have an unusual rose which was a bush rose, but, due to training, has been converted into a climbing variety; at least it grows over the wall of my garage. Do you think I may be able to get recognition for establishing a new variety of plant?

PAUL A. M.

Your rose is suffering from bud rot, which should be controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture just as growth starts in the spring and later for a few weeks prior to the blooming of the plants. Coated lead arsenate is the best spray to use to get rid of Japanese beetles. Better apply to some horticultural society regarding the awarding of a prize for the establishment of a new rose. I do not know of any medals that are given for such work.

When is the best time to prune shrubs? My American Beauty rose has become too tall; when shall I cut it back? My shrubbery is not blooming as it should. I am sure it is due to its never having been pruned. MRS. M. H.

Spring-flowering shrubs should be pruned immediately after they have finished blooming. Fall-blooming varieties should be pruned in the early spring. Prune an American Beauty rosebush in the spring.

I have just planted four trees, a larch tree and three white pines. Two of the pines are flourishing, but one pine and the larch are turning brown. Please advise the treatment that will restore them. MRS. R. R.

When planting you should have preserved a large ball of roots, because you have no chance for establishing an equal ratio between top and root by pruning, as in the case of deciduous trees. Evergreens are much more sensitive to drying out at the root than are deciduous trees, because of the resinous sap in the roots, which quickly hardens upon exposure to the air. You should even at this time have the roots well mulched. Better at once attend to this, using peat moss or pine needles. Deep planting is another cause of failure of evergreens. At this season it is well to keep all these trees well watered.

Please tell me the best spray to use for lantanas that have been attacked by red spiders. MRS. E. A. L.

Usually cold, soapy water will route this enemy. If this does not cause the spiders to leave, try any nicotine spray available.

I have had to spade up my front lawn. Must I wait until next spring to sow seed or can it be seeded this fall? When can I lift and divide iris? Is it possible to transplant Chinese pinks? F. W. N.

Sow seed this fall. Bearded or German varieties of iris require frequent transplanting, as the clumps soon become thick. These varieties should be lifted and divided every three years. Do this work soon after they have finished flowering or at any time between then and the fifteenth of September. Plant them on slight ridges to insure good drainage in winter. Incorporate some lime and bonemeal with the soil before planting. You should experience no difficulty in transplanting Chinese pinks.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Extremely flattering, this black georgette gown with its odd neckline touched with lace, and its separate jacket which shows the neckline of the dress. (Courtesy of Maison Tollmann, Paris.)

Paris, August 12.

IN the "Story of Philosophy" one finds listed in the index under "Art" and again "Beauty," perfect, clear-cut and convincing explanations of why artists attempt to portray always the most beautiful examples of the thing they are reproducing, or even to further (to the occasional bewilderment of the proletariat) and merely suggest the group to which it belongs. Not with photographic fidelity, but by exposing, as far as possible, the idea. A work of art is successful when it represents, not the outward appearance of things, but their inward significance. The noblest art appeals to the intellect as well as the emotions.

(Yes, we do make figures on our lovely ladies like five-pronged pitchforks—but remember, these are not photographs, they are an ideal.)

Kant begins by correlating design and beauty. "The beautiful is anything which reveals symmetry and unity of structure as though it had been designed by intelligence."

And does that not explain beauty in the choicest of nature's gifts, woman? A truly beautiful body reveals symmetry and unity of structure, and usually is designed by intelligence—for rarely, if ever, has a perfect beauty been born. Beauty is the product of intelligence, a thinking effort to form the constituents of beauty into beauty.

How to make the most gorgeous lace-trimmed satin nightgown, and the simply beautiful satin and lace-trimmed kimono to wear with it, is what you can find out this week by such a simple gesture as sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to go about it.

Do you think you could invest a more gorgeous gift, for yourself or for somebody else? Well, if you just saw mine or Alana's you wouldn't think so.

• • • • •

Is there anything more gracious in the clothing line than black georgette line? Well, I just don't think so. When I think of an afternoon gown or an informal dinner gown the first thing that comes to my mind is black georgette—but black georgette well done, you understand. Well done and perhaps charming as well, as the Tollmann gown I have illustrated for you today in all of its graciousness. The skirt drape was unusually lovely and the neckline positively had personality, touched as it is with its discreet note of ecru lace. And then the simple little jacket just would be cut in such a way that the neckline of the dress looked like a special trimming for it.

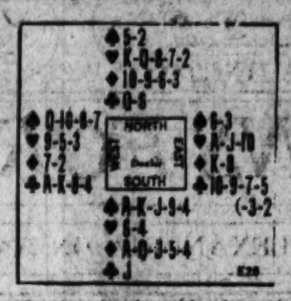
WORK ON BRIDGE



The above hand was played recently in a game of Contract Bridge. The bidding was: South two Spades, North three Hearts, South four Diamonds and North five Diamonds.

Had it been played in Auction the bidding doubtless would have been similar except that South's first bid would have been one Spade, over which North would have called two Hearts and South three Diamonds, which would have ended the auction.

When the hand was played West led the King and then the Ace of Clubs. South ruffed the second Club and planned to establish Spades and also to lead trumps from the dummy hand. He led the King and Ace of Spades and then a low Spade; dummy ruffed the third Spade, but unfortunately, East over-ruffed. East then led his Ace of Hearts which defeated the contract and of course saved game.

If you had held South's cards, could you have made the needed five-odd?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The question is not how many tricks Declarer could make on a "double-dummy" basis, but how many he should have made by playing soundly without knowing the location of unseen cards.

When South led to trick 3, three possibilities presented themselves; he could lead the trump Ace hoping to drop a singleton King; he could lead three Spades, as he did, with the idea of ruffing the third in dummy and then leading trumps, or he could lead a Heart expecting to win in dummy the second time Hearts were led and then to lead a trump from that hand

With four adverse trumps, the division is about as apt to be 3-1 as 2-2, but the odds are long (even when the division is 3-1) against finding any particular card of the four held as a singleton, so the idea of leading out the trump Ace could be dismissed without serious consideration. The danger in the Spade-leading scheme which Declarer tried was that one adversary would have only two Spades and could over-ruff. That obviously involved leading three rounds of Spades, but getting dummy in with a Heart to finesse trumps necessitated only two leads of Hearts and lessened the risk of an adverse ruff.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

He Makes Demands.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am reading the letters in your column every night. I want to ask your help. I am in my second year of college and 19 years old. After I am through I must teach at least three years to repay my aunt and uncle, who are like father and mother to me, and have raised and educated me. But while in high school I fell in love with a boy who was athletic and not much else, although I did not care. He was very good looking and the other girls all wanted him. At that time my father was still living and he did not like the boy, and you know how that always helps. Well, I went on long walks with him, and although he was always arguing to obtain privileges, I never weakened. He was two grades above me and left school before I did. We kept on going together.

Then I went to college and met some one I could really care for. But, Miss McDonald, it is the same old story. After two years he is still arguing, just like the other. I gave him up once, but we went right back to each other. But now he says he is tired of waiting for me to see "reason" and is going to give me up for good.

I know what you will say. But is it my fault that I can not marry for three years? Sometimes I feel that the world is not worth the fight, for it is nothing but fight. I know he has no right to try to make me do what I know to be wrong. But it is terrible to be all alone in a strange city, with not a soul to take you anywhere. Can you tell me any way I could hold him and still not go against everything I know to be right? Thank you in advance.

KAY.

You will never lose a man by maintaing your status as a worth-while human being. But the chances are 100 to 1 that you would lose him, and promptly, if you fail to maintain that status. Your difficulty is that you enter into argument upon a subject regarding which there is no argument for the woman. You young people today would have fewer problems if you would accept the fact that men have been insulting women since the year 1, but not the same women. It is up to a girl to decide long before her second year in college just which type of woman she wants to be. And right here let me tell you that if you sit around talking sex to the boys you meet, they will very promptly be talking sex to you, and in very direct terms.

If a girl has any mentality, she can find a plane that places her above such challenges. Remember that he can make such demands. When you develop in mentality and character, men will stop arguing with you on a subject they would not dare to even breach to the girls they want to marry. No man is thinking of marriage or even love when he is urging a girl to make herself cheap and common. A real man would consider it a calamity to break down a girl's morale, while these loose-talking nitwits seems to regard it as part of their education. Hold yourself higher. Be the sort of woman men die for, not the sort they order around, cheapen and finally disgrace.

Tell this man that he is not the sort of fiber you admire in manhood. Tell him to find some one of his own sort. You will not lose him. It would be a blessing if you did, but you won't. Then see that he accords you the respect other women receive from the men they love. It is about the least a woman can ask of life.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 13 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Only mind control can offset the disheartening influences on this date. An Arab proverb says, "Dwell not upon thy weariness; thy strength is in the measure of thy desire." Apply this principle on your "today's" business, and failures may be turned into success. Opposition from an elderly person.

The child born on this August 13 will be shy, reserved, studious and interested in scientific pursuits. It will seldom show its inner nature and will have a reverential disposition. It will not be an early riser from choice. It will be a most faithful and loyal friend.

You need to fight the procrastination habit. It is so easy for you to put off until tomorrow what can and should be done today. You live in a blind hope that things will be easier later on. You lack the push and courage to clean each day's slate as it comes. The postponed task is often the undone duty, and your intentions become, many times, only inactive thoughts. The world will never know what a good fellow you intend to be. You think too much about what you have to do, instead of going at it and getting the immediate job done.

You have a compassionate nature, and a desire to do good. You associate readily with other people, are friendly and companionable and dislike loneliness. Companionship is most essential to one of your temperament, and you must never live or travel by yourself. You get strong intuitional impressions, which you are advised to heed. They will lead you less astray than logic and reason in your case. You have refined tastes and considerable personal pride. You are obscurantist enough to believe in real love, and you do not waste lightly that which nature and honor intended you should keep for one man or woman. Given the opportunity of study, and the determination to make good, you could make a decided figure in the direction of the drama or music. A lack of self-confidence is a drawback to you in any career.

BROILED CHOPPED MEAT.
(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Many cuts of meat too tough to be broiled may be prepared very satisfactorily by being chopped, salted, and broiled. Allow about one-half teaspoonful of salt to a pound of meat. For very little children the meat should be scraped, instead of being chopped, for in this way the connective tissue is taken out. An egg or a little milk may also be added.

The most important point is careful handling, for if the meat is pressed together it becomes tough and hard. If a wire broiler is used, the cakes should not be squeezed between the two sides. To avoid this, lay them on top of the broiler and turn them with a knife and fork.

In summer you need this inconspicuous sanitary protection

Never is Kotex so indispensable as in summer—with clothing reduced to a minimum—and frocks so thin and dainty.

ONE of the important reasons why smart women are so very enthusiastic about Kotex lies in its clever shaping.

This is especially desirable in summer, when one so loves to wear those thin, soft frocks.

Wear these dainty things every day, if you like. Just be sure that Kotex — no substitute — is your sanitary protection.

No outline ever shows through even the thinnest summer dresses, because Kotex is so carefully designed. The ends are rounded and tapered.

Kotex absorbs 5 times as much as the finest cotton. And even on the warmest days you'll find Kotex retains its light, delicate quality for several hours. This is largely due to the remarkable substance of which it is made — Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding.

Preferred by hospitals

Cellucotton is so superior that 85% of our leading hospitals use it in preference to fine surgical cotton.

Kotex deodorizes—so appreciated in summer. Dispose of it just as you would a piece of tissue. No washing, no embarrassment.

Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

NATS HAMMER LYONS FOR 5-4 VICTORY OVER CHISOX

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Mique Malloy, the fat, garrulous prize-fight promoter of the Chicago region, has been dropping his hook into the waters hereabouts, and at the present moment Mr. Malloy is reeling in and yelling for a landing net. Mr. Malloy thinks he has hooked Jack Sharkey, of Boston, for a fight with Primo Carnera, to be held in Chicago along toward the latter days of September, but, of course, the members of the Garden Corporation, who may be said to have stocked the Eastern fishing grounds, are doing what they can to scare his fish off the hook or force Miquel to throw him back.

They want Mr. Sharkey to fight William Stribling here in September, but it appears that they neglected to place him under any formal contract for his next prize fight when he met Max Schmeling and fouled him at the Yankee Stadium in June. Thus, except for a vague consideration described as a moral obligation, Sharkey is described as a free agent at present, with the right to accept the Chicago engagement if it attracts him.

Malloy came to New York bearing a letter from George Getz, the wealthy coal dealer and amateur baboon fancier, who entered the prize-fight trade in a delicate way as honorary copromoter with Tex Rickard of the second Tunney-Dempsey fight and liked the strong odors of the racket so well that he remained in it as a member of the Illinois prize fight commission. This letter indorses his mission and bespeaks for him the helpful consideration of Mr. Will Carey, Rickard's successor in the Garden.

Carey Not Interested, Upon Reflection.

Mr. Carey at first seemed inclined to cooperate with Malloy, who invited the Garden firm to join him in producing a Sharkey-Carnera fight. But on further reflection, Mr. Carey guessed he would not be interested in a Chicago promotion, bearing in mind that his own firm had produced only two bouts of any importance on its own account this summer and both of those lightweight events drew less than $170,000 each.

Stribling has agreed by transatlantic telephone to fight Sharkey in New York in the autumn, but neither Stribling nor Sharkey has endeared himself to the New York trade and it seems unlikely that a return bout between them would draw more than $250,000, remembering how bashfully they fought under the Garden firm's management in Florida.

Sharkey and Carnera, in a Chicago fight, properly exploited, would be likely to draw twice as much trade, considering that Carnera has never

Stribling-Schmeling Berlin Bout Planned

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—William L. ("Pa") Stribling and Jeff Dickson, European fight promoter, arrived from England tonight on the liner Paris to confer with Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, about a possible fight between Schmeling and W. L. ("Young") Stribling in Berlin.

Dickson said he was bidding for the world championship fight for Berlin and that he is already assured of a million-dollar gate there. The elder Stribling said that while his son had not entered into a written contract to meet Schmeling in Germany, he would abide by whatever arrangement Dickson might make.

Dickson said Schmeling will not be offered a percentage, but a fixed sum. He indicated that in this arrangement Schmeling and Jacobs will largely set their own figure and that Stribling will have to be content with what is left. "Young" Stribling, whose ring stock recently received a boost with his decisive defeat of Phil Scott in England, is returning on the Aquitania, due here Friday.

Capital Boys Advance in Net Play

McLean Beats Cuban, Reaches U. S. Boys' Quarter-Finals.

Morrison Gains 4th Round of Juniors; Doubles Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 12.—Jack McLean, Washington, D. C., boys' champion, continued his winning pace in the national boys' singles tennis championships on the Culver Military Academy courts today, entering the quarter-finals with an easy win over Juan Sabates, Cuba boy champion, 6—0, 6—4. McLean has been stroking to perfection so far in the tournament but will need all his lore tomorrow in his match with Jack Lynch, of Taft, Calif., second ranking Pacific Coast boy, who is one of the hardest drivers in the tournament.

Donald Morrison, Washington junior star, had his left-handed drives going swift and deep in his match this morning and meets Harry Jens, Milwaukee, in the fourth round tomorrow. The winner of the match will undoubtedly play Karl Kamarth, Austin, Tex., seeded No. 1 in the juniors and the heavy favorite for the national junior crown.

McLean-Barclay Pair for Doubles.

The doubles are slated to start tomorrow morning in both divisions. McLean is paired with Henry Barclay, a clever port-sided Baltimore player, and they have been seeded No. 3 in the draw. Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Calif., national boy champion, and Lynch are seeded No. 1, followed by Frankie Parker, 14-year-old lad of Milwaukee and recent winner of the Western boys' title, when he defeated Cohn, 6—2, 6—1, and George Boynton, Atlanta, second ranking national boy.

Barclay, McLean's partner in the doubles, turned in the first major upset of the boys' championships today by eliminating F. Keaney, St. Louis, seeded No. 7 in the draw, 6—3, 6—4. Barclay now rests in the quarter-finals, where he meets George Boynton, Atlanta, second ranking national boy star.

MISS JACOBS OUT OF NET TOURNEY

Betty Nuthall Still Choice With Helen Wills Also Out.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A last-minute attempt failed today to add Helen Jacobs, America's second ranking feminine tennis star, to the list of contestants in next week's national women's singles championship at Forest Hills. A transcontinental telephone call brought the information that continued ill health makes the trip impossible.

This development, combined with the surprising withdrawal of the champion, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, last night left Betty Nuthall, 19-year-old English star, in the position of favorite as the official draw made was at the offices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

With the names of the country's No. 1 and No. 2 ranking stars conspicuous by their absence, 57 players made up the field.

Miss Nuthall Heads Foreign List.

Ten were selected as the foremost contenders and were seeded in the draw. Miss Nuthall was seeded first on the foreign list, the only other member of which was Baroness Levi, of Italy, the former Maude Rosenbaum, of Chicago.

If the tournament progresses without major upsets, Miss Nuthall will be called upon to meet Miss Cross, the present ranking No. 3 player of the country, in the third round. Miss Palfrey in the quarter-finals, Miss Morrill in the semifinals and the left-handed sharpshooter, Mrs. Harper, in the final.

Miss Morrill, Miss Burkhardt, Miss Palfrey, Miss Cross and Miss Nuthall are in the upper half. In the lower section are Mrs. Harper, Miss Grant, Miss Goss, Miss Cruickshank and Baroness Levi.

This will be the English stars third bid for the title. In 1927 it took Queen Helen to stop her in the final, and last year Mrs. Molla Mallory upset her in the quarter-finals, likewise in straight sets. But neither of these nemeses will be in the field this year.

1932 Olympic Winter Games at Lake Placid

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A $60,000 contract for the erection of a bobsled run and return road, at Lake Placid, for use in the Olympic winter games in 1932 was let on August 1 by the New York State Olympic Winter Games Commission.

The site of the run is just outside the village of Lake Placid, on the property of the Lake Placid Club. The original site selected was on land owned by the State as part of the State forest preserve. Legislation to permit the use of State land for the bosled run was enacted, but the court of appeals held the act unconstitutional, inasmuch as it permitted cutting down trees in the forest preserve, which is forbidden by the State constitution.

Arrangements were made, after the court decision, to find another site for the bobsled run, with the result that the land of the Lake Placid Club was made available, and the legal difficulties thereby were overcome.

Newport News Cops Seek Marksman Title

Newport News, Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Bluecoated marksmen of Newport News hope to capture honors of the police division in the American Rifle Association National Tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 24-September 14.

Armed with their weapons and a neat appropriation by the city council, the team will leave here August 2 in a city car, carrying with them the scalps of all police teams in the State, victories over soldier teams in the various Tidewater posts, and enough medals won at the Seagirt, N. J., Eastern small bore matches this summer to hide their badges.

Sergt. B. M. Deal, captain and coach of the team, will lead the contingent. He has chosen to take with him four others who break 99 bull's-eyes out of 100 as a part of their day's work. They are Detective W. F. Peach, and Patrolmen J. E. Terry, E. W. Hill and S. E. Saunders. They compose the same team that captured a half dozen or more honors at the Seagirt matches. The team will be the only police team from Virginia entered in the national competition, competing with nearly two score of the best "cop" shots in the country.

Ruth's 43d Homer Aids Yanks to Win

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth twice played the hero role today as the Yankees opened their series with Detroit by pulling out a 6-to-5 victory from a close duel between Ed Wells and Waite Hoyt.

In the third inning the Babe hammered out his forty-third home run of the season with Reese on base to climax a four-run rally and give the Yanks a good lead. In the ninth, after Charley Gehringer's homer had tied the count, Ruth came through with a single with two on base to drive in the winning tally. Two men were out and there were two strikes on the Babe when he broke up the game. The homer put Ruth eight games and nineteen days ahead of his 1927 record.

Neither starting pitcher saw the finish. Hoyt gave way for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Wyatt was the loser while Gehringer's homer drove Wells out and Henry Johnson appeared to win his third successive victory as a relief hurler.

Singer-McLarnin Bout Is Banned in New York

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission refused sanction today for a proposed match here between Al Singer, lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, leading contender for the welterweight crown. The commissioners turned down the bid of the Madison Square Garden promoters because of a ruling preventing a champion in one class from competing in another.

Frank Bruen, general manager at the Garden, explained to the commission that there was little hope of pairing Singer and Jackie Kid Berg, contender, in a title match this September because of the financial demands of the warriors. A match may be made between Singer and Tony Canzoneri, New York veteran.

MACKS WIN 2; LEAD NOW IS 9 GAMES

Grove Turns in 9-1 Victory; Shores Gains Shutout.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Mose Grove and Bill Shores tamed the Cleveland Indians in both ends of a double-header today, pitching the world's champion Athletics to victory by scores of 9 to 1 and 7 to 0. Grove in winning the first game turned in his nineteenth triumph of the year against four defeats. The Macks increased their lead over the second-place Washington Club to nine games.

Al Simmons, with two singles and a home run with two on base, led the Mack assault on Shoffner in the first game. In the second game Jimmy Dykes' double with three on in the fourth inning removed the tension of a close contest.

Cards Pound Sherdel In Opener With Braves

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals pounded their old teammate "Wee Willie" Sherdel for eight bunched hits to win the opening game of the series from the Boston Braves here today, 4 to 2. Jim Lindsey allowing ten scattered hits and only one walk.

Watkins did the heavy stick work for the Cards, getting four hits in as many trips to the plate, accounting for three of the St. Louis runs. Sunny Jim Bottomley's home run accounted for the fourth.

SCHAAF FIGHTS HUNT.

Boston, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, and Babe Hunt, young Oklahoma slugger, today were signed for a ten-round bout on September 2 by Eddie Mack, Argonne A. A. promoter.

Mack said the guaranteed $17,500 purse will be divided on a 60-40 basis. Hunt has performed here twice within the last three weeks, knocking out Paul Pantaleo, of Chicago, and outpointing Jimmy Braddock, of Jersey City.

Cubs Subdue Robins, 3-2, In 11th

Stephenson's Single Defeats Vance Before 45,000.

Heart Disease Fatal to Fan as 2 Leaders Stage Thriller.

By WILLIAM WEEKS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Sheriff Fred Blake and his posse of bristling Cubs corraled the Brooklyn Robins, 3 to 2, after eleven innings of spectacular baseball before a record throng of 45,000 spectators today and hoisted themselves into a full game lead in the torrid National League pennant fight.

From the standpoint of thrills it was one of the greatest shows staged by the national pastime on Wrigley Field. Lightning double plays, great pitching in the pinches by Blake and his mound rival, the one and only Dazzy Vance, and close decisions kept the large throng on its feet from start to finish. One spectator was fatally stricken with heart disease as the game ended.

Stephenson Singles With Three on.

The "Old Hoss" from Alabama, Riggs Stephenson, ended the victorious assault on Vance, by singling with the bases loaded in the final inning, to score English with the precious tally.

The victory extended the Cubs' spell over the Robins to twelve triumphs in sixteen games for the season and the fifth time this year that they have defeated Vance, their erstwhile nemesis. Too, it was the Cubs' sixth straight victory and the fifth consecutive setback for the Robins.

Vance was not more than a small part accountable for the defeat. Two errors in the opening inning by Jake Flowers, Robin second baseman, paved the way for two runs, and not even the efforts of Babe Herman could overcome the handicap. Herman got two doubles, a single, a triple and a walk but was so well bottled up on the bases, that he scored only once.

Where the dazzler lacked support, the Cubs came through with fielding of such brilliance as to strangle Brooklyn scoring attempts, except in the second and fourth innings. Twice they choked off runs at the plate, once by another one of Kiki

Wichita Southpaw Obtained by Pirates

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Charles Wood, 21-year-old left-handed pitcher, has been acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates from Wichita, of the Western League. Pitcher Leon Chagnon will be sent to Wichita on option as part of the transaction. Wood, who has a fine record in the minors, will report here Friday.

Horton Smith Breaks Par in Tourney Drill

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Par-cracking golf rattled from the clubs of Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., professional, as he tramped around the Keller course in practice for the $10,000 open tournament which starts Friday.

Smith's 70, 2 under par, stood as the best card turned in during the practice play this week, although perfect figures were equaled twice yesterday and three times today. The Joplin pro's round stamped him as a serious contender for the $2,500 first prize of the tournament.

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del.; Charles Lacey, Clementsen, N. J., and Len Mattson, St. Paul, shot par 72s today. Jock Hendry, St. Paul, and Mattson also had perfect scores Monday.

WHICHONE GALLOPS TO VICTORY AT SARATOGA

Whitney Star, 1 to 12, Wins Handily

Takes Miller Stakes Breezing by Length and a Half.

Ziegler Entry, Gone-away and Spinach, Run Two, Three.

SARATOGA RACE TRACK, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Harry Payne Whitney's champion colt, Whichone, gave fair evidence of his greatness when he galloped to victory in the Miller Stakes at a mile and three-sixteenths here today and earned $4,475 for his owner. W. M. Ziegler's pair, Goneaway and Spinach, were second and third, respectively. The presence of Whichone was the cause of other horsemen withdrawing their charges.

Whichone was held at the prohibitive price of 1 to 12. The start was good and Spinach went to the front to make the pace while Workman eased Whichone back. Goneaway was third, many lengths back. The first half mile was turned in 0:47 3-5 and, going into the far turn, Workman let Whichone run. The colt drew alongside of Spinach and in a few strides passed him with Workman sitting perfectly still. Whichone flashed by the mile post in 1:37 3-5 and finished out the full distance in 1:56 3-5, defeating Goneaway by a length and a half.

Annapolis Wins Feature At Hawthorne.

Chicago, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—W. J. Salmon's 4-year-old brown colt Annapolis, by Man o' War, accounted for the Eastgate Purse, the best number on today's card at Hawthorne track. Golden Prince, from A. Barclaistein's stable, was second, with Amyvale, from the French Lick Springs Stable, third. It was the second straight victory for Annapolis, which was quoted at $3.60 to $2 in the mutuels.

The field of six starters was off well with Jockey Knight taking Annapolis to the outside, in which position he traveled throughout the race. After dropping back to last place at the quarter pole, however, Annapolis gradually drew up on the leaders, caught Golden Prince as they straightened out in the stretch, and drew away to win easily by two and a half lengths. Golden Prince set a good pace to the stretch and held on fairly well after being headed to take the place by seven lengths. Amyvale closed gamely after being outpaced to the stretch to be third by three lengths over Wacker Drive.

"Big Four" of U.S. Polo Plays Again Sunday

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The current American "Big Four" of polo, composed of Eric Pedley, Earle A. S. Hopping, Capt. Tommy Hitchcock and Winston Guest, remains intact for the eighth international test match Sunday at the Sands Point Club, Port Washington. It is the first time since the trials began that the same combination has been decided upon for successive games, designed to select the team to play England in September.

Gerald Balding, No. 2 on the British team and first of the invaders to arrive here, is listed to play his regular position against the American varsity. He will oppose Hitchcock, the American No. 3, in a foretaste of action expected to develop in the cup contests. Balding will be supported in the "Reds" line-up by Cecil Smith at No. 3 and H. W. ("Rube") Williams at back. The No. 1 assignment will be divided by G. H. ("Pete") Bostwick and Elmer J. Boeseke, jr. Smith will make a special trip from his home in Detroit to participate.

The four brothers Ashton, from Australia, will play the Army team, holder of the national junior championship, in their second match in this country, scheduled Saturday at Meadow Brook. The military side will line up with Lieut. McDonald James at No. 1, Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, No. 2; Capt. Peter P. Rodes, No. 3, and Lieut. H. W. Kiefer, back

Canadian Boat Evens Series With Thisbe

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—A broken main spreader of the defending Thisbe of the Rochester Yacht Club, which forced her out of competition in the second of the series of races for the Canada's Cup today, brought victory to the challenging quest of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club upon her completion of the 21-mile triangular coure off Summerville, 7 miles north of here.

After Thisbe was forced to withdraw, Quest continued alone around the course, finishing in 3:24:34, well within the 5½-hour time limit and making it one all.

It took lively work on the part of Skipper William P. Barrows and his crew to save the Thisbe's 56-foot mast when the spreader gave way 3 minutes after she trailed across the staring line, 40 yards behind her rival. Main sheet and jib were quickly lowered and a Coast Guard cutter towed the defender to the Yacht Club basin.

Immediately after the Thisbe was crippled, Skipper Norman Gooderham ordered a single reef in Quest's main sheet as a precaution against a similar mishap, as long as it was a race Gooderham appeared willing to risk everything, but with the Thisbe definitely out, he avoided unnecessary danger during his lonely trip twice around the triangular course.

Barrows announced that the refitting would be completed in plenty of time for the start at noon tomorrow.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Saratoga Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 12.—Thirteen top class 3-year-olds are entered to compete for the $4,000 purse in the noted Grab Bag Handicap, the main feature on a good Wednesday card. With clear weather prevailing, a marked improvement in the attendance is looked for as the field carded to go in the Grab Bag is a well-matched one, and is made up of some of the real good 2-year-olds on the grounds.

The Wilton Handicap, the next best race of the day, brings out a fast field of handicap preformers, while in the second race cross-country performers will have their inning as six good steeplechasers will match strides.

BEAU JOLIE, an improving youngster, is given the call in the Grab Bag. This clever colt has been showing excellent form in recent competition and off the dope must be the choice. In his last start, which was a clever victory over a smart field, the son of Bo McMillan demonstrated that he is fully capable of handling tomorrow's keen opposition. With a steady ride he will prove hard to whip. CONDESCEND, like BEAU JOLIE, has been showing fine form at this point. His ability is too well known to require further comment. This appears the race where he will crack down and be a sharp factor. Third money may go to POLYDORUS, which will be ridden by the capable 2-year-old rider, Bill Kelsay. Off the form he displayed at Belmont, the Cochran color-bearer will be a sharp contender. SMEAR and SIR ASHLEY are possibilities.

FIRST RACE—NELL W which makes her initial appearance of the 1930 season is fancied in the running of the opening number, at one mile. This miss showed a touch of class in last season's races and recent trials indicate the daughter of Leonard O II is ready to win first crack out. PARADISE LOST came from away back to win on Saturday. The performance points her out as strictly the one to fear in what appears a two-horse race on paper. Show money may be won by NORMA JEAN, who has little to beat for that position.

SECOND RACE—THE ACE II, a fast and bold fencer is awarded the preference in the Bull's-eye Steeplechase at about 2 miles. The Hollister gelding needs only to run back to his winning performance at the meeting to account for the jumping event. He is easily the best. BROWN STOUT and HUETTE appear the ones which will offer the contention.

FOURTH RACE—Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's speedy 3-year-old colt, SARAZEN II, stands out over the smart field in the Wilton Handicap at 7 furlongs, which will be run as the fourth race on the card. He is plainly the class of his field and needs only to run his face to be the victor. Training at this park has been all that one could desire. He is in the pink. POLYGAMOUS, unlike the sons of Stefan the Great, favors a route. All of his recent races have been on the good side and, if SARAZEN II is defeated, the Cochran colt is the one most likely to turn the tables on him. SUN MISSION has W. R. Coes' BLACK MAJESTY to down for the show money.

FIFTH RACE—ELECTA is in a perfect spot in the fifth. If this mare is ever to win a race, she should turn the trick in this number. But for interference in her last, she would have been returned the winner over Goose Egg. CAESARION and CAPSTONE may fight it out for place.

SIXTH RACE—If SIR ASHLEY is reserved for this race the Fitzsimmons colt should be an easy winner. He is also entered in the Grab Bag, but appears up against it in that stake.

PRINTERS WIN TO MAKE TRIPLE LEAD-TIE POSSIBLE

Hospital Nine Defeated by 7 to 6

Loss to Navy Yard Today Gives Latter 2d Half Honor.

Win Puts Printers in Triple Tie in Govt. League Race.

BY defeating the Naval Hospital Nine, 7 to 6, yesterday on the Monument Lot, the Union Printers put themselves in position to share second-half honors of the Government Baseball League, which officially ends today with the Naval Hospital-Navy Yard game.

Should Naval Hospital down Navy Yard this afternoon the three teams will be deadlocked for first place, each with a record of seven victories and five losses. The only team that has not lost five games, Navy Yard, however, can clinch the second-half crown by downing Naval Hospital today and thus gain the right to meet that same team, winner of the first-half title, for the championship.

Sparkling Out-fielding Helps Printers.

In case of a three-cornered tie by virtue of a Hospital victory today, a play-off among the trio will be necessary before the championship is awarded.

It was sparkling work afield that enabled the Printers to emerge victorious yesterday, catches by Outfielders Lowery and Schneider killing serious threats made by the Hospital Nine in the late innings.

After having scored twice in the ninth to step within one run of a tie, Hospital's hopes were dashed when Lowery came in fast to get under a short pop fly apparently falling safe, with two men on base, for the second out, while in the previous inning Schneider had dashed in to get under another apparently Texas leaguer in short center.

Pitcher Heinie Webb Tight In Pinches.

While given sterling support, Pitcher Heine Webb deserves much credit for the victory by his cunning hurling, which kept the Hospital players worried throughout. His dilatory tactics continually got under the skin of the enemy, and his ability to strike out batters in the pinches played no small part in the victory.

The Printers sewed up the game in the fourth inning when, after two hits and an intentional pass, Waple topped the ball down the third-base line for an infield single which the Hospital Team allowed to roll, thinking it would roll foul. Schneider put the game on ice then and there by smacking out a double to clear the bases.

Pirates Pound Ball To Beat Phils Twice

Pittsburgh, ug. 12 (A.P.).—Heavy clubbing by the Pittsburgh Pirates carried them to victory over the Philadelphia Nationals in a double-header here today, 8 to 7 and 8 to 3.

The first game went fourteen innings with the Phillies forging in front in their half of the fourteenth and the Pirates rallying for two runs on L. Waner's triple, P. Waner's double and Traynor's single. The Phillies counted five times in the seventh inning to go in front 6 to 5, but a Pirate run in the eighth forced the game into extra innings.

FIRST 2 TESTS HURDLED BY CONSIDINE

D. C. Champion Enters 4th Round of W. Md. Play.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 12.—Bob Considine, District of Columbia champion, advanced to the fourth round of the Western Maryland championship today when he upset Harvey Lake, veteran Ocean City performer, in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2. In defeating Lake, the Washingtonian used a constantly varied series of shots that threw the veteran off his hard-driving base-line style of play.

Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson succumbed in straight sets to W. S. Ramsay after advancing to the third round at the expense of Teddy Hammer. Ramsay also accounted for another Washingtonian when he nosed out M. G. Martinez in three sets.

Today sees the start of the men's doubles and the women's singles. Washington fared well in the seeding of both events. Bob Considine and Lieut. S. K. Robinson have been played at the top of the draw in the doubles, while Marywill Wakeford, Margaret Carspecken, Mrs. M. G. Martinez and Frances Walker have been accorded the honors in the women's event. Considine faces a hard task today in men's singles when he meets B. F. Arkie, defending champion.

Georgetown Mermaids Win Playground Meet

Rosedale Team Beaten for First Time Since 1927; Miss Roudabush, of Losers, Wins 2 Events as Georgetown Cops, 69 to 47.

GEORGETOWN playground mermaids, representing the Western section of the city, defeated the Rosedale swimming team, representing the East, in the Municipal Playground's annual swimming meet yesterday in the Georgetown pool, 69 to 47. It was Rosedale's first defeat since 1927.

Margaret Roudabush, of Rosadale, was the only contestant winning more than one event. Miss Roudabush took first in the 17-year-old class 25-yard free style and the 25-yard side stroke. Swimmers on both teams won one first and a second place.

Misses King and Wrenn Divide Honors.

The expected duel between Rufina King, of Rosedale, and Clara Wrenn, of Georgetown, materialized as they divided honors in the two events that they competed in. Miss King took first place by a close margin in the 25-yard free style, with Miss Wrenn second. In the 25-yard side stroke Clara led Rufina to the finish line by an even slighter margin.

Frances Cady, of Georgetown, showed a fine burst of speed to barely win the 10 to 12-year-old 25-yard free style event. The six little starters matched stroke for 15 yards but in the last 10 Frances drew away to a slight lead. Helen Hersburg, of Georgetown, was second and close behind her was Molly Herson, of Rosedale.

Beginners' Races Interest Large Gallery.

Much interest was evinced by the several hundred spectators in the two beginners races. In the under 10-year-old class, Mary Breshlahan, of Rosedale, was just a stroke ahead of Mary Lariah, of Georgetown, and in the over 10 class Virginia Guntow, of Rosedale, completed the 10-yard dash a fraction of a second ahead of Margaret O'Connor, of Rosedale also. These youngsters learned to swim this year in the Georgetown pool.

Mangin, Bell Overtake Tennis Field at Rye

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Two Eastern players and one Texas youth caught the field in the third round of the Eastern grass courts championship for men at the Westchester Country Club today and as a result, sixteen of the country's leading players are left in ruffing for the title held by William Tilden, the national champion. The same number of players remain in the women's singles with eight slated for elimination tomorrow.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., Davis Cup alternates and winners of the doubles title at Southampton, came through as did Melvin Partridge, New Rochelle, N. Y., in the only men's singles played today. Bell had to play his best in a three-set match before defeating Jack Tidball, Los Angeles, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4, while Mangin had a short session with Harry Plymire, San Francisco southpaw, the Jersey player turning back his Western opponent, 6—0, 6—1. Partridge stopped the progress of a Fort Worth athlete, Jake Hess, Jr., conqueror yesterday of J. Gilbert Hall. The scores were 6—3, 6—4.

Tilden after a two-day rest returns here from Philadelphia tomorrow and will oppose Julius Seligson, New York, in an upper-half singles tussle. He will play with Francis T. Hunter in the doubles.

Alexandria Legion Team Is Given Rousing Send-Off

Two Bands Head Parade to Station as Coach and 15 Players Leave for National Quarter-Finals at Gastonia.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 12.—More than 1,000 Alexandrians were present last night at Union Station to wish the American Legion Juniors, champions of the State of Virginia, success on the trip to Gastonia, N. C., where they will play in the quarter-final series of the national American Legion tournament on Thursday and Friday of this week.

J. Prex Wilson, athletic director of the team, made a few remarks and stated his boys would do their best to bring back honors to Alexandria. The team was given a rousing cheer as the train pulled away.

Before reaching Union Station, the boys were paraded up King street, headed by the Citizens Band and the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps. Several hundred citizens were in the line of march and red flares were interspersed every 10 feet to light the way for the youngsters.

Coach Wilson Takes 15 on Trip.

Fifteen players and Coach Wilson made the trip. Those in the party were James Moriarity, manager; Jimmie Bruin, captain; Woodrow Godfrey, Billy Fletcher, Dick Clift, Charlie Stump, Paul Humphries, Frank and Charlie Backus, Jack Hudson and Charlie Nicholson, Kendall Foltz, Charles Baber, Gene Zimmerman and Everett Clark.

Coach Wilson will probably start Jack Hudson in the opening game. Hudson is a big right-hander, with plenty of "smoke." He will have Charlie Nicholson, southpaw, ready for relief duties or for the second contest.

Eighty-two Alexandrians, headed by City Manager Lawrence, will make the trip. Some of the followers left by automobile today, while the majority leave by train tomorrow evening.

Cards Meet Firemen Sunday.

The Cardinal Athletic Club held an important reorganization meeting last night. Business Manager De Vaughan announced that the Breenmen would meet the Columbia Firefighters next Sunday in the second game of a series. The Cards won the first encounter.

The St. Marys Celtics will play the Mount Rainier A. C., leaders in the Prince Georges County League, on Sunday. George Mosedale is manager of the Marylanders. Mount Rainier defeated the Celtics in a game last year and the Alexandrians are anxious to avenge the defeat. Doc Dreifus will probably hurl.

Sidney Hancock, coach of the Gator Swimming Club, stated his nautical stars have accepted the challenge of the Georgetown Municipal Pool Team for a meet. The date for the races will be announced later. The Alexandria swimmers will invade Washington for the competition.

Second Swimming Meet Tonight.

The second night swimming meet of the season will be held Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock at the Municipal Swimming Pool. It was announced today by officials. A number of events will be listed for all classes. A large crowd is expected to witness the events.

Leslie Lane's Baraca Bible Class Team will play the Carter Motor Nine Wednesday afternoon on Haydon's Field in the second game of a series. The Fordmen won the last contest.

The Fort Humphreys World War Veterans, through their chairman, Ross Walker, contributed $8.25 to the Legion Juniors' equipment. The grand total of the fund is now $146.

INSECTS PLAY PRELIMINARY.

The Spud Coleman and Holy Name Insects will play the preliminary game to the Takoma Tiger-Firemen game at 3 o'clock today on the Silver Spring Diamond.

Despite a rally in the last inning, the District Police Ball Team was downed by the Takoma Cubs in the Fairlawn field yesterday, when it was outslugged by the Maryland Nine, 13 to 12. Bordeau's home run with one on in the ninth assured the Cubs of victory before the Cops had made their last stand.

NOON RALLY FAILS; STOCKS DROP FAST

Index Off 4 Points in Most Severe Decline Since Slump in June.

BUSINESS UPTURN LAGS

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—The stock market's answer to the crop situation and to the failure of business to show improvement was a break today to the lowest average levels since the bottom of the June decline.

The closing price index of 90 leading shares dropped 4.1 points, to 157.9, against the year's low of 154, made on June 24, and 160.8, the previous minimum for the current reaction, reached last Saturday.

It was a day of generally declining levels, broken by a rally around midday that eliminated early losses of 3 to 8 points. But the market only swung into a larger break in the last hour, when pressure against rail, merchandising, farm implement and utility shares was extended to the coppers, motors, steels and other industrials.

Reacting during the morning under the Department of Agriculture's estimate of a seriously impaired corn crop, the market stiffened later on the appearance of rain forecasts for the grain belt.

J. I. Case Drops 14¾ Points.

However, President Hoover's decision to cancel his vacation so that he might keep in closer touch with the drought situation, announced in the afternoon, reached Wall street almost simultaneously with the weekly steel operation figures, which reported another decline, and selling was renewed in some volume. There were net losses of 2 to 5 points in many shares, while numerous vulnerable issues lost much more severely. J. I. Case closed off 14¾, and People's Gas 19.

A score of prominent stocks went to new lows for the year or longer. Among them were Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, International Harvester, Kennecott Copper, National Lead, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Gulf States Steel and American Locomotive. Liquidation in several of the lines represented in this group, especially the mail order, farm machinery and rail shares, was based on the supposition that earning power would suffer from the depreciated income of the farmers. Motors joined the decline after General Motors had posted price reductions on two of its cars.

Banking interests in close touch with the general business situation were said to feel that the only signs of improvement had been the resumption of activity by the automobile plants after the vacation shutdowns. This, it was pointed out, had resulted in a slight increase in steel specifications, which tended to check the slump in operating ratios of U. S. Steel and a few of the larger independents.

Steel Output Declines.

Dow Jones' figures estimated production for the steel industry at 56 per cent of theoretical capacity last week, a decline of 2 per cent. At this time last year, operations were working lower but in 1928, a more normal year, the seasonal upturn had started.

The stock market was more active on the decline than on the rally, and sales pushed over the 2,000,000 share mark on the liquidation of the last hour after having run along at small volume. Although much of the selling was of professional origin, there was some liquidation from commission houses.

New lows for the reaction were too numerous to mention. U. S. Steel was borne down at 156⅜, its lowest in weeks, and closed at the bottom for a net loss of 3⅜. Gulf States, Republic and Bethlehem steels each lost about 2, which was the extent of the decline in General Motors, General Electric, Anaconda, Gillette, Hudson Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Studebaker, Rock Island, R. H. Macy, New York Central, American Telephone and North American. American Can dropped 5¼.

International Harvester touched the new low of 72, finishing at 73½, a net loss of 4⅜. Canadian Pacific, Coca Cola and Westinghouse Electric were down more than 4. Eastman Kodak, Columbian Carbon, Vanadium and American Tobacco B closed 6 to nearly 8 lower. Woolworth and Sears Roebuck sagged about 3, and Montgomery Ward about 2.

Warner Bros. Gains.

Warner Bros. Pictures rallied 4 points on covering prompted by unconfirmed reports that the company was to get new banking sponsorship and might do some financing. The stock reacted, however, and closed with a fractional gain.

Wall street's increasingly bearish attitude toward the utilities, whose prices in relation to earnings are being rather closely studied, was reflected in the slump of the average on this group to a new 1930 low. Some of the larger losses were in American & Foreign Power, Detroit Edison, Electric Power & Light and Pacific Lighting, off 3 to 4 points.

The prospects of rain turned corn heavy and it closed fractionally lower. Bearish wheat news led to selling in that grain, which finished 2½ cents off. Cotton was sold on the weather outlook and lost $1 to $1.15 a bale.

Foreign exchanges eased, diminishing the possibility of gold exports on tomorrow's fast steamers. Sterling lost 3-32 and the French franc shaded off. The Spanish peseta made a new low.

SEVERAL RAIL BONDS RISE, GROUP ACTIVE

Fair Demand for Utilities and Industrials Sends Few Issues Ahead.

MONEY TREND WORRIES

New York, Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Bond buyers showed partiality for carrier obligations in the listed market today and enabled further advances in this group. A moderate demand developed for a scattered list of investment issues among utilities and industrials, which pushed them fractionally higher, some to the best levels of the year.

Otherwise the day's developments were negligible, with the lost still unsettled, by uncertainty over the trend of the money market during the next few weeks. Some dealers reported a general advance of ¼ of 1 per cent in rates on time money today, an adjustment which followed the firming of call money yesterday.

Any rail issues which are comnolent for days at a time participated in the activity and some of the wide changes which developed gave carrier obligations an irregular appearance. Investment rails were fairly steady.

Several Highs Recorded.

New highs were scored by Central Pacific 5s, Rock Island general 4s, Canadian National 4s of October, 1969; Mohawk & Malone 4s, New York Central construction 4s, Nickel Plate 1st 4s and Western Maryland 4s. Nickel Plate 6s, however, declined more than a point to the year's low. Northern Pacific general 3s, and Missouri Pacific 4s were among the issues which were depressed.

Already selling at high levels, some of the utilities negotiated the narrow distance to reach new 1930 peaks, among these being Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, Laclede Gas Light 5½s D and Public Service Electric & Gas 4½s. Louisville Gas & Electric 5s were in demand at ½ point above yesterday's close. Utah Power & Light 5s were depressed about 1 point.

Among industrials, oil company bonds attracted buying. General Petroleum 5s and Humble 5½s turned over at the year's best figure, and Standard Oil of New York 4½s established a new high.

Warner Bros. Rallies.

Stock privilege issues worked irregularly lower. Rail convertibles found support a fraction lower, with Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, an exception, holding unchanged, and Erie convertible 4s, an active issue, climbing to a new high for the year. Warner Bros. 6s made an attempt to rally, gaining 2 points on the movement and closed½ net higher. Pathe 7s, with warrants, dropped 6 points. General Theaters 6 equaled its year's low.

A slightly easier tone was apparent in foreign dollar bonds. Standard issues were steady and dull. Strength was shown by Australia 5s, Budapest City 6s, Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s and Norway Mortgage Bank 5s, the latter reaching a new 1930 high. German issues were under pressure.

U. S. Governments worked slightly lower under the influence of the firming of credit rates on an unusually small turnover. Liberty fourth 4¼s, the active issue, held steady.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

FEVER AND MILK.

THE prevalence of undulant fever among farmers and people who live in towns and small cities is additional proof that we must soon come to pasteurization of milk on the farm and in the small dairies of the towns. If this were the universal practice there would be a moderate reduction in the prevalence of typhoid fever and tuberculosis and a great reduction in diarrheal diseases among babies. There are reasons enough for asking the farmer to pasteurize the milk that his family consumes and for having the small dairyman install a pasteurizing plant. This would not be feasible, however advantageous it would be, if pasteurizing in a small way required an expensive plant or was expensive or troublesome to carry out.

Many years ago Dr. C. E. North demonstrated that milk could be pasteurized by setting a ten-gallon can of it in a vat of hot water. He specified the temperature of the water and the length of time required for the milk to reach 140 and how long the can was to remain in the hot water. This method required no equipment except a vat and a hot water boiler.

At one time a simple, inexpensive pasteurizer selling for about $100 to $200 was on the market. Perhaps one of this general type is still available. A family can use a vacuum bottle or vacuum jug as a pasteurizer. The milk is heated to, say, 140 and then placed in the vacuum bottle or jug and left there for one hour or more. It is removed and chilled. Milk can be heated to this temperature without harming the cream line. This temperature, maintained for one hour, will kill any of the ordinary disease producing bacteria.

Streptococci are killed by a temperature of 129 maintained for one-half minute. Diphtheria bacilli are killed by the same heat and time exposure. Typhoid bacilli are killed by a temperature of 132 for 30 minutes. Tuberculosis bacilli by 138 for 30 minutes. The bacillus of undulant fever by a temperature of 131 for one hour, therefore, offers a considerable factor of safety.

BATHING A YOUNG BABY.

A. B. C. writes: I read recently the report of Mrs. C. S. relating to the bathing of her baby, and I venture to suggest that she give the baby a sponge bath instead of immersing her in the water, as being less of a shock to a little baby, and is quite as cleansing; wetting, drying and covering a small portion of the body at a time and as fast as possible. This is the method I used with my own six children, being taught by an excellent nurse.

DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS

Mrs. M. L. E. writes:

1. What causes uremic poisoning?
2. What can one do to escape it?
3. What are the early symptoms of the disease?
4. How can one rid himself of excessive uric acid?

REPLY.

1 Disease of the kidneys or failure of the kidneys for any reason.

2. Avoid kidney disease. If kidney disease exists, live carefully. Avoid exposure to cold infections. Eat cautiously. Avoid alcoholic beverages.

3. Albuminuria, casts, dropsy, mental heaviness, headache, high blood pressure.

4. By eating potatoes, bananas and other vegetables and fruits. By drinking water freely. By sweats. Excess uric acid seldom causes trouble.

BEING CAREFUL COUNTS.

D. F. writes: I visit a tubercular patient in a sanitarium every week and would like to know if

1. It is all right to sit on the patient's bed to converse?

2. Exchange gifts (that she has wrapped)?

3. She receives candy from a friend and offers the box to me after it has been in her drawer a few days.

REPLY.

1. All right to sit on a chair near the bed.

2. Yes, if the patient is careful and the consent of the physician has been given.

3. If she is careful there should be almost no danger.

met a first-class man in this country and considering also that he has never been convicted of fighting on the level in the U. S. A.

Great Curiosity As to Carnera.

There is great curiosity as to Carnera, who has yet to show whether he is a fighter or just an order of ham cut exceedingly thick. Malloy reports an eager interest on the part of the Chicago innkeepers and retail merchants. Opposed to this interest are those of the New York hotel men and merchants, who are surprisingly provincial and exert considerable pressure on their own prize-fight commissioners to keep the customers coming here for the big demonstrations.

James Farley, chairman of the New York commission, is out of patience with Carnera's bevy of managers on account of several professional exploits which are deemed to have brought the fair name of pugilism into disrepute. He would indorse a Sharkey-Stribling match, but would oppose any unveiling of Carnera in this jurisdiction until he has served a term of penance, or, in other words, until the patrons and the opponents of the prize-fight industry have had a chance to forgive and forget.

Malloy has definitely employed Carnera, but of some twenty heavyweights of various grades whom he endeavored to retain for the opposite corner only Sharkey evinced any interest. Malloy promptly came to New York and here discovered, so he insists, that Sharkey was a free agent and only needed to be shown that he could make enough money fighting Carnera for him in Chicago to compensate for the disfavor of the Garden company. Of course, if he should beat Carnera in some spectacular way, barring fouls, he would have no trouble at all concluding peace with the Garden.

Fights Now Regarded as Public Festivals.

For an arena, Malloy was his choice of the two Chicago ball yards and the great Municipal Arena at Soldier Field, although the rent for the latter edifice would come to a bit more than a prudent promoter might care to undertake. However, considering the volume of trade that might be drawn to Chicago for the proposed bout, the business men affected might be counted on for helpful support.

to observe that nowadays heavy-

In this connection, it is pertinent to observe that nowadays heavyweight prize fights are regarded more as public festivals, stimulating to business, than as contests of strict sporting virtue. The mere fac that two underserving characers and their immediate business associates inevitably must make a lot of money is regarded as a necessary evil incidental to the accomplishment of a great good for a large number of business men.

Gets believes Carnera and Sharkey would draw at least $750,000 in Chicago. Will Duffy, one of Carnera's managers, alarmed by the recent deportation order against Carnera, which was rescinded only upon the application of firm political pressure, has told Malloy that Carnera is now ready to fight on a c omparatively honest basis, barring nobody.

Sharkey's two managers, Jack Conway and John Buckley, both of Boston, will meet Malloy here tomorrow.

CUBS WIN IN 11TH IN DUEL WITH VANCE

Cuyler's great throws from right field. Two double plays helped to haul Blake out of other trouble. Blake gave 12 hits to 14 by Vance, but was at his best during the last two innings. In the Robin half of the eleventh, he fanned Gilbert and Herman, then forced Bissonette to roll out.

Single by English Starts Rally.

After Blair had been tossed out in the eleventh innings, English singled over second. Cuyler singled through the same spot and Wilson was intentionally walked, filling the bases. Stephenson then cracked a single off Gilbert's glove to drive in English.

Blair, first up for the Cubs, was safe on Flowers' fumble, which permitted him to reach second. English got a synthetic single off Flowers' shin, and Blair raced to third. Cuyler sent Blair home with his sacrifice fly.

Wilson was safe on Flowers' second bobble, with a double play in sight. Stephenson singled to left, sending English home with the Cubs' last run until the eleventh.

Brooklyn scored in the second on singles by Flowers and Frederick, and tied it up when Wright singled in the fifth to send Herman home.

The Robins loaded the bases in the ninth and tenth innings, with two out, but each time Blake bore down successfully.

ALEXANDRIA TRADE BODY HEARS REPORT

Hollenga Tells of Month's Work With Chamber of Commerce.

MAN BURNED IN OIL FIRE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Dan S. Hollenga, addressing the Chamber of Commerce at the George Mason Hotel Monday night, submitted his report for the first month of his tenure as business manager. He told of the industrial survey now in progress, in which he sent a questionnaire to the business men of the city, asking the number and classification of their employes and other information, of his efforts to have local labor employed in the construction of the new postoffice building here, of his work in connection with the proposal to locate the Zeppelin base in Hybla Valley near Alexandria, of the industrial prospects, of his work in connection with the heat wave and drought and the plans for the George Washington bicentennial celebration.

In connection with the Washington bicentennial, Mr. Hollenga declared that the plan of the commission to use automobile tire covers bearing a picture of George Washington should be dropped and a more dignified method of advertising adopted.

Mr. Hollenga deplored the lack of adequate welfare work in Alexandria and declared that the city should secure the services of a trained welfare worker, so that the children of the city could be provided with more amusements to keep them off the streets, particularly late at night.

J. William May offered a resolution to request the State Legislature to adopt legislation requiring all property owners on a street proposed for improvement to join in the improvement if a certain percentage of the property owners on the block assumed their proportion of the cost of the project. The matter was referred to the business manager, who will take it up with the chambers of commerce throughout the State in an effort to get concerted action at the next session of the Legislature.

Several of the standing committees of the chamber made reports, among them George F. Downham, chairman of the finance committee, who reported that the budget for the first year's activities had been presented and adopted. Mr. Downham also presented the report of Harry H. Newton, subchairman of the budget committee.

Sidney Weil submitted his resignation as subchairman of the membership committee, and Dulany Hammond was appointed to succeed him.

Announcement was made that the chamber will shortly move all of its offices into the corner store in the George Mason Hotel, now occupied by the business manager. There is ample window space in this room for display of articles manufactured in Alexandria, and this room is considered preferable to the present quarters of the chamber, which open directly into the hotel lobby.

E. H. Curran, of Penrose, Arlington County, was severely burned, and the plant of the Shell Eastern Oil Co., at Montgomery streets, was endangered when a pool of gasoline ignited Monday afternoon. The blaze, however, was extinguished with slight damage.

Curran and other employes were preparing to connect a hose to a tank car when gasoline which had run out of the hose suddenly flared up. Two cars which were in the danger zone were pushed to a place of safety, and two tank steamers, which were pumping gasoline to the plant, suspended operations until the flames were extinguished. The company officials and Fire Chief Duncan attributed the blaze to sparks which were caused when the metal coupling of the hose the men were handling dropped on the railroad track.

The injured man was rushed to the hospital by G. Frank Allwine, chief of the Jefferson District Fire Department, who happened to be talking with Fire Chief Duncan when the alarm was sounded, and responded with him.

New fire fighting equipment of the local department proved its worth in fighting this fire, which theratened to be extremely serious, as something like 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline are stored at the Shell plant. Chief Duncan ordered the use of foam generator and foam powder, which are especially designed for use on oil fires, and within two minutes after this was played on the flames all danger was past.

Exalted Ruler James Reece Duncan, of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. E., has announced the appointment of the fololwing delegates to attend the Virginia Elks Association convention to be held in Hampton, Va., August 18 to 20: P. A. Kersey, F. P. Russell, John W. Tulloch, George H. Railing, Herman Freidlander, Owen Lynch, A. T. Moore, Albert Hurshman, Harvey Robinson, Windsor W. Demaine, Harry F. Kennedy, Dr. J. J. Garvey, Frank Ball, Michael T. Dwyer and Harry Hinken.

The delegation will leave Alexandria next Sunday, and plans for the trip are now being formulated by George H. Railing, secretary of the lodge.

The annual excursion for the benefit of the Elks charity fund will be given August 26, when the children of the Alexandria Day Nursery will be the guests of the Elks on a trip to Marshall Hall.

Annette Jackson, 29 years old, Neplaced under a bond of $1,000 not to placed under a bond of $1,000 nnot to violate the gambling laws, by Justice W. S. Snow, in police court yesterday, when Policeman Henry Grimm produced charred pieces of paper on which "numbers game" playings had been written, and stated he had rescued these bits from a kitchen stove in which the woman threw a handful of papers when he approached.

Symonia Ridgeway, aged 79, died Monday night at the home of his niece, Mrs. W. S. Stuart, 417 North Columbus street. The funeral will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning from St. Mary's Catholic Church, with burial in Bethel Cemetery. The deceased is survived by two sisters, Miss Josephine Ridgeway and Mrs. Ella Glassford, both of Washington.

Local police are conducting a drive against makers of "home brew," and yesterday in police court Robert E. Hill was fined $50 and costs, with a 30-day suspended sentence, for possession of 40 bottles. Heretofore the police have not molested the makers of home brew unless they had reason to believe the brew was made for sale.

The baby clinic for Potomac will be held today, beginning at 9 a. m., in the health-center building, Mount Vernon avenue, with Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson, the nurse provided by the local Kiwanis Club for the work, assisting the city health officer, Dr. W. L. Schafer.

A delegation of seventeen members of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce, on an airplane tour of the State, landed yesterday afternoon at the Washington Airport, where they were met by a committee from the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and escorted to the George Mason Hotel, where they were entertained at dinner last night. They spent the night here, and after breakfast at the hotel resumed their trip. They will go to Winchester from here and will spend tonight in Staunton.

In the course of the dinner last night a number of short speeches were made by members of the party and their hosts of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce.

19,665 Industrial Workers Are Hurt

Accidents Show Decline in Virginia So Far; 78 of Injured Die.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—There was a slight decrease in accidents to State industrial workers during the first half of 1930 from the figure for the same period in 1929, reports to the industrial commission of Virginia show. Frank P. Evans, statistician, announced the number this year as 19,665, as against 20,192 to July 1, 1929.

During the first six months of 1930 death resulted in 78 of the injuries, the same figures for the first half of 1929. Of the 78 deaths this year, the greater number, 26, occurred in coal mining among approximately 13,000 employes.

There were six deaths which resulted from sawmill work among approximately 5,000 employes, while in road and street construction there were five fatalities.

Colonial Monument Area Survey Begun by U. S.

Engineers Arrive for Initial Work to Map Jamestown Island, Yorktown and Williamsburg, Preparatory to Cornwallis' Surrender Celebration.

Yorktown, Va., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Government engineers started surveying here today for the National Colonial Monument area, including Yorktown, Williamsburg and Jamestown, created by the last session of Congress.

Engineers from the topographic branch of the United States Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior, making the survey over an area of 5 square miles, said three weeks would be required for completion of the work.

The survey is being made preliminary to the arrival of topographers who will map the area. The map is to be used by local, State and national committees preparing for the sesquicentennial celebration of Cornwallis' surrender, to be held here next year.

While the survey is being made over 5 square miles, no indication was given as to the Yorktown area to be included in the monument, although it is limited to 2,500 acres. All of Jamestown island was expected to be included, but in Williamsburg, only such land as is necessary for a right of way for a connecting highway is to be included.

Maryland Blazes Menace Piedmont

Autoist Takes Water From Radiator to Put Out Bridge Fire.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 12.—The fire companies of Piedmont, Western Port and Luke have been kept busy answering calls on the hills near the Piedmont-Keyser road. The scale house of the Martin-Hoffa Coal Co., on Third road, burned and the fire is raging on both sides of the track. The fire has gotten near the city limits of Piedmont. All available men in Piedmont have been fighting the fire and the Keyser Fire Department has been called several times.

Charles A. Via, Frostburg merchant, driving a truck over the Luke-Piedmont bridge, noted flames issuing through the bridge floor yesterday. He stopped the truck and drained water from his radiator, extinguishing the blaze.

A number of sections reported frost early today as a result of the sudden drop in temperature. Between Frostburg and Midland, for 5 miles the ground was completely covered by frost.

Democrats Select Convention Date

Maryland Delegates Meet in Baltimore September 18, Ray Announces.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12.—J. Enos Ray, of Prince Georges County, chairman of the Democratic State central committee for Maryland, has formally announced that the State convention of the party will be held in the Maryland Theater, Baltimore, on September 18 at noon (standard time).

Delegates elected from the several counties and Baltimore City at the primaries to be held in September will attend the convention which will mark the opening of a campaign that will continue until November election.

Both the Democrats and Republicans have avoided primary contests as far as State candidates are concerned, but congressional battles and, warm fights for local offices in most of the counties are indicated.

West Virginia Frost Adds to Drought Loss

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Light to heavy frost early this morning in central West Virginia, followed the lowest August temperatures ever recorded in this section and caused added damage to crops, which for the last 54 days have been suffering from drought.

Farmers from nearly every section of Harrison County reported frost, while in the Elkins, Belington, Laurel Mountain and Sugar Creek sections a heavier frost was reported.

$30,444,864 Valuation In West Virginia County

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Berkeley County has an assessed valuation of $30,444,864, including real estate and personal property, according to figures released here today by the county court.

The valuation in the corporate limits of Martinsburg is nearly $14,000,000. Last year the valuation was $313,071 less than for the county and $245,000 less for Martinsburg district.

Dry Weather Hits Nearby Apple Crop

West Virginia Growers Are Wondering if There Is to Be Any Harvest.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—With the time for harvesting late apples in the Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac belt rapidly approaching, with arid conditions being the worst in the belt's history and with untold damage already having been done, growers are placed in the position of wondering if they are going to have any crop at all.

Many of the late varieties, which constitute about 90 per cent of the season's yield, are picked mostly during October and November, and by the middle of August are generally of fair-sized growth.

Growers point out that if present conditions continue much longer the apples are not likely to approach their normal size.

This great apple section's churches for the last several days have been offering prayers for rain. Optimists contend that plenty of rain during the coming few weeks will make the crop a marketable one.

Hens Still Laying In Egg Output Test

One Fowl Scores 250 in 40 Weeks of Maryland University Contest.

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., Aug. 12.—Abnormal weather conditions, which resulted in a decided slump in egg production by the 1,000 hens entered in the fifth annual egg-laying contest at the University of Maryland, failed to bring the score lower during the fortieth week. With 41.99 per cent of a perfect score, the record stood a fraction of a point above the previous week.

Leghorn pens carried off all honors for best pen production. The entry of Hoch's Pedigree Breeding Farm, Williamstown, N. J., was first with a lay of 55 eggs. A pen from L. E. Heasley Farms ranked second with 53 eggs.

No changes took place in the line-up of home-State layers. The entry of Confidence Farms, Anacostia, D. C., continued to lead with 2,055 eggs. Bolton and Scruggs' pen stays in second place with 1,965 eggs. Hen No. 1 in the Ehmann Poultry Farm entry, from Allison Park, Pa., continues to hold first place in individual production, having raised her total to an even 250 eggs.

Fire Threatens Bridge On Rappahannock River

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 12.—Fire threatened to destroy Falmouth bridge which spans the Rappahannock River, when flames originating from a lighted cigarette carelessly tossed on the structure ignited the oil floor covering.

A chance passerby checked the blaze momentarily with a bucket of water until a fire truck reached the scene, some damage was done when the flames spread to the pedestrian walkaway, which is made of wood.

Man Kills Self Over Drought.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 12 (Special).—His mind unbalanced from worry over drought losses, J. L. Ceeder, 72, farmer, took a revolver and killed himself this morning at his home on Rock Run in Upshur County, while his wife struggled and pleaded with him not to shoot. He leaves a family.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN COUNTY STUDIED

Arlington Groups Continue to Discuss Question of Government.

GAS FRANCHISE IS CITED

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

The committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation meeting with special committees from the Arlington County Bar Association and the chamber of commerce at the home of Arthur Orr in Lyon Park last night continued its study into the question of a change in the form of government most suitable for Arlington County.

Mr. Orr, chairman of one of the subcommittees, in making his report declared that the control of public utilities through the franchise-making power, granted by statute to Virginia cities and the State constitution, is the strongest argument in favor of the incorporation of Arlington County.

"As to such control of the public utilities on the part of counties," the report said, "both the constitution and the statutes are silent."

"The recent action of the county board of supervisors in granting a permit, without any limit as to time, to the Rosslyn Gas Co. to extend its mains through the streets of the county amounted to giving that company a perpetual franchise," Mr. Orr declared.

Franchise in Cities Compared.

"If Arlington County had been an incorporated city," Mr. Orr continued, "the city council could not have granted the gas company an unlimited permit to occupy the streets, as was done by the board of supervisors. The constitution and the code of Virginia prohibit cities from granting franchises for a period longer than 30 years. The City of Alexandria recently granted the Virginia Public Service Co. a 30-year franchise with the provision provided that upon expiration of the franchise all of the poles, wires and conduits and other property of the company shall be removed from the streets, alleys and public places of the city and the latter restored to their original condition.

"No such advantage will be possessed by Arlington County 30 years hence in regards to the Rosslyn Gas Co., nor at any time in the future, because the board of supervisors have granted them a permit without limit as to time and without right or revocation, which the Virginia courts have declared, amounts to a perpetual franchise."

The report further states that the Arlington County shores of the Potomac River from Mackey's Hill in Rosslyn to South Washington is lined with businesses of a general nature. One of the coal firms having a distributing plant in Arlington County was reported doing an annual business approximating $300,000, going across Key Bridge into the City of Washington. Wholesale gasoline and oil companies, which have large plants in the county, also do a total business which runs into a huge sum.

Other establishments, such as bottling works and laundries, are using Arlington County as a base of operation for large amounts of business transacted with people and firms of the District of Columbia.

License Taxes Cited.

"Under a city form of government substantial license taxes could be imposed, measured in percentage on the volume of business conducted by these establishments, naturally increasing the total sum of revenues without imposing any additional burdens upon the people residing within the county," Mr. Orr said.

Income from fines for violation of city ordinances was stressed in the report as another argument in favor of incorporation. "Cities," the report states, "may impose maximum fines of $500, while counties are limited to $50. Counties have no power to parallel the State penal statutes and all fines imposed in Arlington County for the violation of State tramc and prohibition laws go to the State treasury. The budget of the City of Alexandria for the current year anticipates a revenue of $30,000 from fines. Arlington County's receipts last year from fines was $717.18.

"While the cities must bear the expense of the board of prisoners which would otherwise be borne by the State, the budget of the City of Alexandria for the current year calls for only $13,865 for the total cost of the city jail. If Arlington County, under a city form of government, with population practically equal to that of Alexandria, should do as well, the net proceeds of fines would in six years build a new $100,000 jail, and after that time the fines from that source would be sufficient to provide a police force of at least ten men to maintain law and order in the county," Mr. Orr said.

While the committee has reached no decision, final action as to the form of government which the committee will recommend at the September meeting of the federation will be taken at the meeting to be held the evening of August 25 at the home of W. D. Medley, 215 Rucker avenue, Lyon Village.

O. R. Borcherding was elected president of the Glebewood Citizens Association at its meeting held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Malcolm. Other officers are Robert H. Forman, vice president; Mrs. O. G. Funk, treasurer, and Mrs. William Culpeper, secretary.

The association voted to use its influence in having all children of the community who have heretofore attended the Ballston School to attend the Lyon Park School, which is now being enlarged. This plan, it is stated, is in accordance with the suggestions from County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, and which, if followed, will greatly reduce any crowded conditions at the Ballston School.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth filed with the county clerk yesterday 150 more suits for the collection of delinquent real estate taxes. The suits are brought in the name of the Commonwealth. This makes a total of 370 suits which have been filed in the last few days. Mr. Gloth announces there are still more to come.

Despite the cool weather last night a large crowd attended the second night of the sixth annual convention and jubilee of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association being held on the lot adjoining the Woodrow Wilson School Building at Fort Myer Heights fronting the Wilson boulevard.

Dancing appears to be the leading attraction.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. A. B. Honts, president, will preside.

The Clarendon Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. S. A. Rohwer, 186 Key boulevard, Lyon Village.

The Arlington County Rotary Club meets tomorrow at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 12:30 o'clock.

200 FIGHT FLAMES NEAR FORESTVILLE

Fire Burns Over 20 Acres of Forest Land and Menaces Homes.

WOMEN SEEK DIVORCES

More than 200 volunteers battled four hours yesterday against flames which burned over 20 acres of forest land on the outskirts of Forestville, Md. The property is owned by Joseph Waters and Harry Crozier, of Forestville.

The blaze, fanned by high winds, was plainly visible from both the Marlboro pike and Red Corners roads, between which was the damaged property, and Prince Georges County Policeman Frank Prince was kept busy preventing curious motorists from entering the fire area and interfering with the firemen.

Fire companies from Capitol Heights, Greater Capitol Heights, Boulevard Heights, Seat Pleasant and Marlboro responded to an alarm sent in by Justice of the Peace M. M. Griffith, whose property adjoins that which was burned. The fire companies gave their attention first to preventing destruction of four dwellings located in the burning area, in which they were successful. It is believed the fire may have been started by children playing.

Charging that her husband, Edward James Gilkerson, deserted her on the day he married her, Mrs. Nell Gilkerson, of College Park, Md., filed suit for absolute divorce at Marlboro yesterday.

The petition stated that the Gilkersons were married in Washington on January 31, 1927, and that later the same day Gilkerson left his bride and the last time he was heard from he was at Miami, Fla. Mrs. Gilkerson also asks for restoration of her maiden name, Nell Penner. There are no children. Waldo Burnside, of Hyattsville, is attorney for Mrs. Gilkerson.

Suit for divorce was filed at Marlboro yesterday also by Mrs. Hattie S. Link, of Mount Rainier, Md., who charges that her husband, Oscar M. Application of Henry M. Brunk, of Brentwood, for reclassification of three lots in the Holladay Division at Brentwood from residential zoning to commercial, was approved by the Prince Georges County Commissioners in session at Marlboro, Md., yesterday.

Because the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission has disapproved of his application on the grounds that it seeks to acquire part of the property involved for park purposes, the commissioners continued for 60 days the application of Frank H. Vaden, of Brentwood, for rezoning of five lots in block A, Brentwood, from residential to commercial. An application by Etolle M. Vaden, daughter of Frank Vaden, for similar rezoning of two lots in the same block also was continued to permit completion of the planning body's negotiations for its park sites.

RULES FOR HUNTING IN FAIRFAX CHANGED

ROADS TO BE DISCUSSED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 285, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

State Game Warden A. B. Carter, of Fairfax County, has received a communication from the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries containing a resolution relative to the hunting of squirrels, adopted at the August meeting of the commission. The resolution reads: "It shall be unlawful to hunt squirrels in the counties of this State except during the open season prescribed for each county, effective September 1, 1930." Section A, which includes Fairfax County, limits the open season to begin September 1 and close September 30, to reopen again November 15 and close the following January 31, inclusive.

This is contrary to the prior regulation, which opened the season on September 1 and continued straight through the year until December 31. The last session of the State Legislature changed the closing date of all hunting seasons from December 31 to January 31 of the following year. The break in the middle of the squirrel season in the new regulations of one and a half months came as a surprise to many persons in the county. The regulations do not apply to land owners who are hunting on their own property. The commission advised Warden Carter that the new game law pamphlet probably will be ready for distribution September 1.

A movement is under way, led by the Rev. Noel Allen, of Alexandria, who is well known in Fairfax County as a champion of wild bird life, to have a bounty placed on foxes either by the State or the county board of supervisors. He claims that such action would stop the loss of millions of dollars' worth of poultry, pigs, wild turkeys, rabbits and quail each year. Foxes are numerous in certain sections of the county, particularly along the upper Potomac River and near the Alexandria Reservoir in Falls Church district.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will meet officials of the United States Bureau of Public Roads this morning at the entrance of the Mount Vernon estate. They will discuss the Federal Government's plan for development of the plaza at the entrance and see at first hand what the officials of the bureau plan to do on the two small tracts of land owned by the county.

The second meeting of leaders of Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, called by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to discuss the development of highways surrounding Washington, will be held in Washington this afternoon. Fairfax County will be represented by Supervisor Mark Turner and County Engineer F. Wovel Larkin.

There will be a meeting of Kenmore Council, Daughters of America, at Andrew Chapel tomorrow night.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Lincolnia will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Lincolnia School.

The Woodlawn Baptist Mission Union will meet this afternoon in the church house.

The Fairfax County home demonstration agent's advisory council will hold a meeting this morning at Great Falls. Mrs. Mark Turner and Mrs. Marvin Sanders will be hostesses at a picnic luncheon.

The Salem Ladies' Aid Society will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. O. Cornwell, at Forestville.

A joint meeting of the women and men of the St. James Catholic Church Parish have been called for this evening at 8 o'clock in the rectory at West Falls Church.

There will be a meeting of the Centerville Grange tonight in the auditorium of the Oakton School. It is expected that there will be a discussion of effects of the drought.

The Colvin Run Community League will hold its monthly meeting this evening in the auditorium of the Colvin Run School.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church at Oakton will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. T. Rice.

The Mayflower Rebekah Lodge, of Woodlawn, will hold its meeting this evening in the Odd Fellows Hall at Accotink.

Argentina Defers Apple Box Decree

Use of Containers Unlike Standard Not Required This Year.

(Associated Press.)

American Ambassador Bliss at Buenos Aires advised the State Department yesterday that Argentina has suspended for this year the decree requiring the importation of apples in containers different from the standards under former regulations.

After a conference between Acting Secretary of State Carr and Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, whose State was one of the principal ones affected by the regulations, the department had asked the Argentine government to modify its regulatory decree of May 14.

Under this decree, importations in barrels and bulk containers was forbidden and a box different from the prescribed standard required. The new regulation does not apply to other fruits.
